Thru the Year

Memories—to recall each of them candidly and fully, with the richness they held while yet new experiences, is the goal at which every yearbook is aimed. In the 1939 HOWLER, it has been the sincere desire of the staff to present, of the year "1939," a cross-section so complete and perfect that any student might, at a glance through its pages, feel once more his presence in the campus life of which he was an integral part.

In presenting such a cross-section, material has been most ogically arranged in chronological sequence. The book is divided into nine parts, one part given to each month of the school year. Each activity or organization has been placed in the part corresponding to the month in which it made itself most prominent. Also, each division has a section devoted to the current events of that particular month. Thus one may turn through the book and recall each event, organization, activity in its proper place and time.

DEDICATION

TO

Charles Chilton Pearson, eminent scholar, able professor, and fairminded gentleman, is the 1939 HOWLER respectfully dedicated in appreciation for his devoted classroom service and for his contribution to Wake Forest in general.

Dr. Pearson has served Wake Forest College for twenty-four years, having very capably filled the position of Professor of Social Sciences for twenty-two years, during which time he has won the admiration and respect of a host of students.

The characteristic jokes and intriguing quiz questions of Dr. Pearson make him a memorable part of the Wake Forest tradition.

... AS WE KNOW HIM BEST

Here, one might hear him say, with that smile that speaks of victory at the outset, "Well now, Mr. Carter, was 'taxation without representation' the main cause of the American Revolution?" Mr. Carter would then, after undoubtedly having given an affirmative reply, be greeted with, "That is exactly wrong, Mr. Carter."

Charles Chilton Pearson, M.A., Ph.D

September

September marks the beginning of the school year, and at this time our thoughts turn mainly to the new freshmen, who are acquainting themselves with the college and this new mode of living called "campus life." They look over the campus, meet the administration and faculty, settle down to the routine of classes, and learn all of the habits of young college men, such as bull-shooting, visiting the mailbox, and studying. Here, in the picture, we see a group of freshmen in the process of registration.

A Freshman

Bob Goldberg, a member of the Freshman Advisory Council which is a committee appointed from the Student Council to lead orientation and direct freshmen activities at the first of the year, shows Ralph Brumet over the campus. After entering the campus through the arch they approach WATT HALL. Here they stop to view the building as Goldberg explains that herein are the administrative offices and classrooms where Mathematics, Philosophy, Religion, and Languages are taught and also that here the two Society Halls are to be found.

Makes

William Amos Johnson Medical Building

The pair approach the Medical School, where they meet a group of Medicos, who are descending the steps of the building. Brunet is shown over the building, which contains a large library, many laboratories and classrooms. He finds of special interest the Anatomy lab, where he sees cadavers on which the students carve in their study of the human body. The Medical building, a memorial to William Amos Johnson, who was the former Professor of Anatomy, was constructed in 1933 with funds provided by his family. This building is a very beautiful structure in a beautiful setting, and it very adequately houses the School of Medical Sciences.

Our party departs from this building and crosses the street to Simmons Hall.

Goldberg and Brunet may be seen stepping off the curb after going through SIMMONS HALL, where they looked over the living quarters of the five fraternities located here. Each fraternity has a large chapter room and space for rooming twenty to thirty individuals.

Here the two are seen entering LEA LABORATORY, or the Chemistry building, which is used exclusively by the Department of Chemistry. It contains lecture rooms, five laboratories, and the departmental library, containing standard chemical reference works and many bound volumes.

Passing on across the campus, Goldberg takes Brumet through BOSTWICK DORMITORY. They may be seen entering the building among the tall white columns. This dormitory was built in 1924, and it houses one hundred eighteen men. Here Brumet saw a bit of dormitory life.

Finally, we see Goldberg and Brumet ascending the steps of the GYMNASIUM, which is a spacious building modern in all details. Here all indoor sports events and physical education classes are held. Brumet was impressed with the extensive equipment available here. The gymnasium was built only recently, and it will seat two thousand spectators.

From here Brumet was taken by Goldberg to meet the members of the Administration.

THERMAN D. KITCHIN
B.A., M.D., LL.D., F.A.C.P.

President and Professor of Physiology

Dr. Kitchin has been associated with Wake Forest College for most of his life. In that time he has built up an enviable reputation as a physician and as an educator, and has become no small part of the Wake Forest tradition. Dr. Kitchin fits the campus scene and the campus scene fits him.

His character may be expressed in part by the word builder. During his administration, and under his able leadership, a number of new buildings have been added, and even now plans for an addition to the Medical Building are being formulated. Another outstanding thing that has come about under Dr. Kitchin's administration is the placement of the college on the Approved List of American Universities and Colleges.

His simple unaffectedness, strength of character, and indisputable ability might serve as a model to every college man. In the end, Dr. Kitchin should command at least a volume in the history of Wake Forest College.

PRESIDENT AND DEAN

DR. BRYAN, M.A., Ph.D.

Dean of the College and Professor of Education

Wake Forest College is fortunate in having as its Dean Dr. Daniel Bunyan Bryan. He is not only a man of broad scholarship, but also he has an unusually keen insight into human nature, a quality which appears to a great advantage in handling sixty professors and a thousand students. His confidence in the students and his manner in dealing with them have reduced disciplinary problems to a minimum and has been largely instrumental in effecting the fine coöperative and understanding relationship that exists between the students and the administration. He is chairman of the local Public School Committee and serves the North Carolina College Conference as chairman of its committee on Collaboration with the State Department of Public Instruction. He has represented Wake Forest creditably at numerous professional and religious gatherings and has given almost two decades of unstinted service toward helping keep the campus a happy place in which to live.

ELLIOTT B. EARNSHAW, M.A.

*Bursar and Secretary
Superintendent of College Hospital*

Mr. Earnshaw watches the pot to which all department hands reach. This he does tactfully and efficiently. It might be said that he has grown up with his position since he has held it for thirty-two years. He has seen the till full in prosperous times and empty in the lean years, but has ever been conscientious about his work, fair in his dealings, and friendly in his associations.

Mr. Earnshaw is obviously interested in the furthering of Wake Forest as a progressive institution. His sympathetic aid in financing campus improvements show that he is primarily interested in seeing that Wake Forest shall be second to none. Mr. Earnshaw has won the friendship and respect of every student with whom he has come in contact.

A. A. DOWTIN, B.S.

*Alumni Secretary
Graduate Manager of Athletics*

The duties of Mr. Downtin are manifold. He is the permanent secretary of the General Alumni Association and publishes The Alumni News, the alumni quarterly. As he is known to most Wake Foresters, also serves as Graduate Manager of Athletics. The duties of this office are to aid in scheduling athletic contests and to execute the athletic policies of the college. He is the coach of the golf team and conducts a golf class which has become an integral part of the Physical Education Department. Wake Forest is fortunate in having such a versatile man to fill Mr. Downtin's position.

GRADY S. PATTERSON, B.A.

Registrar

The position of Registrar carries perhaps the most complicated duties of any in the college. Mr. Patterson's office is responsible for the checking of admission credits, tabulation of grades, issuing of reports, and the arranging of schedules. It might be said that Mr. Patterson is the contact man between the college and the students. He handles his position with courtesy, facility, and efficiency.

COY C. CARPENTER, B.A., M.D., F.A.C.P.
Dean of Medicine and Professor of Pathology

Under the direction of Dr. Carpenter, the School of Medical Sciences has continued the progress that has been made in the past several years. This year, five people have been added to the staff, and the budget has been increased. The Wake Forest School of Medical Sciences, by its high scholarship standards and improved facilities, is preparing doctors who shall ably represent Wake Forest wherever they go.

DALE F. STANSBURY, B.S., LL.B., J.S.D.
Dean and Professor of Law

Perhaps no other department of the college has a better record for consistent success in the preparation of its students. A higher percentage of lawyers, who were trained by Dr. Stansbury and his colleagues, passed the North Carolina Bar Examination last year than from any other Law School in the state. This record demonstrates the ability and conscientiousness of the Law School Faculty.

THE FACULTY

The Faculty, numbering some eighty men, will stack up with any comparable group anywhere. A study made recently reveals that the index of scholarship of the Wake Forest professors, as evidenced by the amount of graduate work done, is as high as that of any other college or university in the state. Further testimony of this condition is the fact that Wake Forest was accredited this year by the Association of American Universities, an organization which is generally regarded as the criterion of the quality of instruction offered.

New additions of the Faculty this year include Dr. E. C. Cocks, in Biology; Dr. S. C. Fielding, in Law; Dr. M. C. Giddings, French; M. L. Griffin (returned to English); Dr. R. E. Miller, Medical School; Dr. Camillo Artom, Medical School; George E. Copple, Instructor in English; Professor Lyman Seymour, Acting Director of Music; H. Grady Britt, Instructor in Biology; J. Alfred Martin, Instructor in Philosophy; Dr. O. T. Binkley, and Dr. J. A. Easley, Religion Department.

To the retired list at the close of the present session will be added Dr. J. H. Gorrell who has attained his "three score and ten." He is the last of the old-timers to be relieved from further active duty to the college.

This year was marked by improved facilities in a number of departments. The Biology lecture room was rearranged in order to be rendered more comfortable and convenient. The Physics Department was improved by the addition of another room for laboratory space. Courses in Music were included in the curriculum of the college for the first time.

Several members of the Faculty have done work worthy of special recognition. Dr. Sherwood Githens of the Physics Department planned and constructed two electrical scoreboards to be used at football and basketball games. All members of the Medical School Faculty published results of research or special study in one of several medical journals.

The Wake Forest Faculty is one of which any college might well be proud.

Freshman Class Officers

The Class of Forty-two has been led capably and effectively by its officers who won their places after a heated political campaign. They are Jimmy Cross of Burlington, President; Arthur Vivian of Summit, N. J., Vice President; Bob Summey of Dallas, N. C., Secretary; and Henry White of Bladenboro, N. C., Treasurer. These men have shown promise of bright college careers.

The Freshman Class this year was not long in becoming acclimated to campus life, joining in college activities from the start. This early participation in campus affairs came about as a result of a thorough and well-planned period of orientation which began several days before the upperclassmen registered. The orientation program this year was led by Jimmy Waller, president of the student body, ably assisted by Eugene Worrell and Bob Goldberg, of the Freshman Advisory Council. During orientation the Freshmen heard talks by the leaders of the various campus activities and organizations, learned the college yells and songs, and were assigned a faculty adviser who helped them arrange their schedules. The Council executed a drive to improve the personal appearance of members of the student body by insisting that all Freshmen wear neckties. This movement had a decided influence upon the upperclassmen.

The results of this Freshman program may be seen in the large number who joined literary societies, the band, and in other activities. Two Freshmen were among the cheer leaders; two were members of the varsity debate squad; several became members of Vanden Dries' orchestra.

Several projects were successfully planned and executed by the Class of Forty-two. A number of socials were held with the Mercedith College Freshmen. These social affairs served a worth-while purpose in broadening the contacts of the Freshmen among members of the fairer sex. A dance was held jointly with the Sophomores in the Raleigh Armory. Besides their extra-curricular activities the Freshmen showed themselves second only to the Seniors in scholarship. This speaks well for the class to which the campus will look for leadership in the future.

No one need look with disdain upon this year's Frosh. They have shown themselves capable and willing to add another good record to another college generation.

Freshmen attend orientation program.

Front doors are wide open in "Rush Season" as can be seen in the upper picture. Below, Rupert Pate and Frank Percott had a couple of prospects in.

Freshmen became acquainted with Wake Forest in a two day orientation period. They attended several programs in the Church, where the different phases of campus life were explained to them. They were told of the rules under which they were to live while here, and classwork and extra-curricular activities, such as joining societies or clubs, working on publications, and pledging fraternities, was made clear to them. Like all freshmen, they were terribly "green" at first, but they soon became enveloped in the friendly spirit of Wake Forest and in no time were swearing by their new-found home.

Fraternities began rushing the first day of school, and freshmen found it hard to get around to all of them. Large crowds turned out to the society smokers, at which Judge Johnson Hayes and Dr. Hubert Potent spoke. The freshmen got off to a good start.

Freshman "Smiley" Starnes gives one of his super-super quarter-moons. He says they take the ouch out of the grinch.

September Sees Freshmen in Many Roles

As the autumn leaves began to fall students arrived at school for another year. The class of 1942 could be seen filing through the administration building, in the process of registering. Later in the afternoon they could be found down town just harmlessly standing around, diligently attempting to find a place for their hands other than their pockets so that they might not be recognized as freshmen. Probably each ate a dozen cones of ice cream that first afternoon.

The show was full every afternoon and night for the first week of school; then it dawned upon some of those new-comers that those professors were giving assignments, and such assignments. Why it would take a month to complete the work laid out in that first week. And there were those fraternity men, who expected you to "come around to the house" every afternoon and night. It was pretty nice though to lounge around in those swell chapter rooms and smoke their cigarettes. And those fraternity men were about the nicest people you ever met. Why they acted like they had known you all their life, and they would do anything for you. Everybody went to the society smokers and stuffed his pocket with cigars and cigarettes. Ah, what a life; no worries or troubles. Just a class or two in the day and a party every night.

Then fraternities were pledged, societies were joined, and quizzes were popped—wow, the hubbub was burst. Instead of lounging about in the chapter room you ran downtown to get Mr. Davis' mail, and how about that society initiation—nothing like it before or again. And speaking of quizzes, that religion professor must think every student is planning to go into the ministry.

After awhile, however, everyone settled down and resigned himself to his fate. Some studied with determination; others ran off to Raleigh daily; still others just took it easy, bothering neither themselves nor others with anything.

Powers and Jett sell Freshman Kintaw his ribbon which admits him to drug stores, pool rooms, and the postoffice.

The bags look on as the jig does some fixing.

October

During the month of October the student becomes acclimated to the daily routine and finds an outlet to this monotony in the excitement of attending all the season's football games. The players endure the grind of every day practice and raise their spirits high on the week-ends when they play their hearts out for the alma mater. The great American sport supplies a goodly portion of the pigment which goes for coloring the college year.

On the opposite page Coach Walker is seen talking things over in practice with Powers, regular tackle of this season.

THE FOOTBALL SEASON

*JIM WEAVER
Director of Athletics*

The "Flaming Sophomores" of Wake Forest's 1939 football season racked up a very enviable record while matching themselves against the best teams of the South. The season was started on September 17, at which time Randolph Macon was showered under with a score of 57 to 6. Wirtz, in this game, began the year with a bang by intercepting a pass and running eighty yards; also Mayberry, Edwards, and Gallovich showed up well. The following week the Deacons met defeat at the hands of a more experienced and somewhat stronger Carolina eleven. During the first quarter Pate blocked Winbourne's kick on Carolina's goal line, and Tingle recovered, making the first score of the day. Carolina made two touchdowns later in the game to pile up a winning score. On September 30 Wake Forest easily downed The Citadel, 31 to 0. Leyton saw much action in this game. In Columbia, S. C., on October 8, the Deacs eked out a win over South Carolina with a one point margin. Edwards and Mayberry played good ball, and Pendergast won praises of the day, kicking the extra point which broke the tie. Playing under par, Wake Forest fell heavily to an inspired State College team. In Winston-Salem, on October 22, the Deacons flew their colors high in holding Duke to a score of only 7 to 0. Mayberry's kicking and the smart quarterbacking of George Wirtz served to put the Blue Devils in their proper place. On Homecoming Day, in a driving rain the Deacon forward wall displayed power in holding the strong Clemson team to a lone touchdown. On November 5, V. M. I. was tied, 6 to 6, and the following week-end the home team unfortunately lost to Western Maryland, who grasped opportunity for the best advantage. The season was wound up on Thanksgiving Day with the annual Davidson tilt. Wake Forest easily took the game with a score of 21 to 0. Thus, Coach Walker led his Sophs through a season which was marked by much color and which gave results of which every Wake Forester is proud.

FOOTBALL

From start to finish the Wake Forest football season was filled with thrills and excitement. Everyone expected a great deal from the team since it had been built up in the newspapers, and since a lot of new outstanding material had been advanced from last year's Freshman team. Though inexperienced the youngsters met the expectations of most backers by showing great potentialities in that they never fell too low in quality of performance, and often they burst into form that has not been equalled at Wake Forest in many years.

Among the rank and file of players there were those who bore the marks of "All Americans." Mayberry racked up a fine punting average, which came as a result of consistency rather than of spasmodic outbursts of talent. From the standpoint of speed, Gallovich takes all honors. Ringgold and Edwards showed up well in power plays and on defensive. In the line Trunzo was most outstanding, displaying power and stamina; also Jett, Powers, and Pate proved themselves of great value. Wirtz proved himself a "natural" in the role of captain and quarterback. The effectiveness of the teams offense might be attributed largely to his able guidance.

Coach Walker is to be congratulated upon the fine product which he has had but two years to build. Surely great things can be expected of him in the future.

Here is presented the football team in one of its daily workouts. The player's life is more than a series of week-end games. Day in and day out he practices, making himself physically fit and at the same time improving his technique. The following pages may serve to give the reader some idea of every player's daily experience.

Above are seen Captain George Wirtz, Pivec, Layton, Webb, and Vanden Dries dressing for the afternoon grind. They joke about what the afternoon holds for them.

After dressing, Waalbert, Wirtz, Waivers, and Balonis proceed to the practice field. Captain Wirtz expresses his opinion on the coming game with Duke. He feels pretty confident the boys can hold Duke to a very low score and hopes a win may be the result.

After preliminary warm up exercises, such as running back punts and catching passes, the squad gathers about Coach "Peahead" Walker, who gives them some idea of what to expect from Duke. He presents his analysis of the situation and gives instructions for working out solutions to the problems confronting the team.

The squad takes wind sprints. The last man reaching the end of the field gets several laps around the entire field. No player relishes this; hence they all dig.

Double-teaming, the practice dreaded by all linemen, improves lineplay from an offensive as well as defensive angle. Three men engage in it at a time.

The squad is divided into separate teams, which go to separate parts of the practice field and run through the various plays, which have been worked out by the coach, until they have thoroughly familiarized themselves with them. Here the team goes through the motion of a reverse play.

The practice field witnesses much more sweating, blowing, and hardship than does the playing field. Daily practicing is the processing of the raw material in order that there might result a polished finished product. Few players like practice, but it is the road one must travel if he hopes to attain his goal, that of becoming a first-stringer. Many men practice day after day with never any reward for their labors. These men, who give their all while in practice but who never see action in a game, are to be admired above all. This persistence might be interpreted as intestinal fortitude. This group of men make a definite contribution to the success of any team.

To become a successful player, a man must put his heart in the game and live it while practicing and playing. Like any other job playing football is composed of a little inspiration and a great deal of perspiration. It has become a quite common belief that most college players go in for the game purely for mercenary reasons. Many no doubt look at the matter purely from this standpoint, but surely the really great players have a great deal of love for the game and are inspired to fight to the last for a winning score. This love and inspiration is the difference between them and their mercenary cohorts.

Football, like other sports, is character building as well as body building. It fills a very individual role in modern college life.

After the hard, grueling practice, the men trudge to the showers where they refresh themselves before dressing for supper.

Homecoming Festivities Mark the Month of October

Settle, of the Phi's, speaks in the Society Day debate which was won by the Phi's.

Pledges are honored at the first dance of the year in the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium, with Key Seales providing the rhythms.

Friday, October 28, Homecoming day was checked full of events for the student and returning alumnus. The societies staged their annual debate and oratorical contests, the Phi's capturing the honors of the day. Lee Settle and Ralph Brunet represented the Phi's in the debate, and Seavy Carroll and James Gilliland opposed them, the query being, Resolved, "That the United States should cease to use public funds for the purpose of stimulating business." In the evening the annual Society Day banquet was held in the high school cafeteria.

Many alumni returned to the scene of their college days and celebrated at a Homecoming Dinner in Miss Jo Williams' new dining hall. Then in a drizzling rain they watched the "Flaming Sophs" stand fast against a powerful Clemson eleven.

Fraternities took a holiday on this occasion. Each fraternity house was decorated colorfully, many odd schemes being carried out. The Pikas won the cup offered for the best decorated house with the idea of a library of books, the titles of which wittily made clear the fact that Clemson would meet defeat at the hands of the "Deacons." On the following evening the Pledge Dance was given in honor of the new pledges to fraternities at the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium with Key Seales furnishing the music. The entire week-end was a gala occasion.

Pi Kappa Alpha takes decoration honors.

At the alumni dinner Dr. Kitchin and prominent alumni have things well in hand.

Football is the great American sport, and October is the football month through and through. The team has by this time warmed up and is showing either signs of promise or hopelessness. The "Deacs" looked good from start to finish, and the contests in which they engaged were well attended.

There were only two home games, but the student found time to grab the girl friend and take off for the games in neighboring towns. An enormous crowd watched Duke get shaggy at Winston Salem as Wake Forest made dangerous thrusts at that coveted goal, which was not reached until the Rose Bowl game.

A strong team helped in renewing spirit on the campus. Several pep meetings were held during the football season on nights prior to games. The rally before the State game was the most outstanding. A bonfire was prepared by the freshmen, and gathering about this, the mob heard several speeches. Afterwards, following the band, the crowd marched down town shouting and singing.

The freshman advisory council laid down rules for the frosh, requiring them to attend athletic contests with school colors on, making them to wear ties at all times, and requiring that they attend chapel. Enforcement of these rules was effected by the publishing of a "black list," in the paper, of the offenders. Honors were bestowed upon twelve Wake Forest students as the 1939 Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities chose to list them among its numbers. They were John Lawrence, Ed Knott, A. M. Mumford, Sloane Guy, Jim Waller, Bill Stainback, Carl Dull, Charles Manning, Gene Worrell, Irvin Dickens, Heath Bungardner, and Smith Young.

Thousands see Wietz return a punt thirty yards in the Duke game.

Editor Pittman drinks to his election as Britt looks over the financial situation, which is probably good.

Downtown after the State pep rally, singing, "Rob! Rob! Wake Forest, Rob!"

November

By November the student has revived his interest in extra-curricular activities, and he is finding time to give some attention to his club or some other activity. There is a variety of clubs on the campus and almost all the students join one or another. Many students go in for debating, Sunday school work, or music. Sophomores are prominent in club-work, and they are by this time coming into their own on the campus.

In the picture here we see the Wake Forest debating team in a radio contest with Colgate.

FORENSICS

The 1939 debate squad enjoyed a very successful year under the direction of Coach Zou Robinson, who has worked diligently and untiringly to make forensics one of the leading activities of the school.

Wake Forest was represented at several debate and speaking tournaments this year, and a very favorable showing was made at each. In the fall the Strawberry Leaf Tournament was attended, and the Wake Forest representatives won over half of the first places it was possible to win. All competitions such as Problem Solving, After Dinner Speaking, Extemporaneous Speaking were entered. Early in the spring the South Atlantic Debate Tournament at Salisbury, N. C., was entered. At this contest the individual contestants in the various speaking competitions won over two-thirds of the first places offered. Also the debate team won first place. Thus the chief honors available were captured by the Deacons. Among those showing up exceptionally well were Worrell, Goldberg, and Brunet. At the same time and place was held the Southeastern Tournament, which was held especially for the purpose of giving trial to new forms of speaking. Here again the Wake Foresters took the honors. In the late spring the Farmville Pi Kappa Delta Regional Tournament was entered, and here the debate team defended its championship of the past two years.

In collaboration with the tournaments attended, the debate team made two trips, at which time it engaged in several practice debates. The first trip was one over North Carolina and Virginia, where the debaters spoke at eight schools over a period of a week. Also a northern tour was made. This journey was through the State of New York, where the College of the City of New York and others were engaged in debates. These were tours of goodwill, and the debates engaged in on such tours were decisionless since practice was the only end desired. Also there were fifteen debates arranged at home, the one with Colgate being the most outstanding. It was a radio debate over WPTF, in Raleigh. The decision was determined by three college professors living in different parts of the state. The contest was a successful one, Wake Forest winning by a two to one vote.

The forensics teams of Wake Forest have done an exceptionally good job this year. Aside from capturing many honors for themselves, they have brought honor and glory to the name of the school.

WAKE FOREST SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA. The Wake Forest Symphony Orchestra made outstanding progress in its first year of existence. Though small in numbers this group worked steadily, reaching for perfection in quality. Several concerts were engaged in along with a chapel program. Mr. Seymour, conductor, has done an admirable piece of work in creating the orchestra and in producing such a fine finished product in such a short time and with such a scarcity of material. Also a good spirit has been shown on the part of those students who have stood so faithfully by him in this work. The orchestra has found a definite place in campus life.

First Violin: Bruce Patchen, Louis Kermou. Second Violin: Howard Olive, Roy Hege, Foy Hege. Flute: John Freeman. Clarinet: Frank Harrell, David Schrum. Cello: Archie McMillan, Charles Freeman. Bass Violin: Harry Lee Hinson. Trumpet: Creighton Rodwell, Walt Wadsworth. Trombone: Ed Aydlett. Piano: Emmet Davis. Conductor: Lyman Seymour.

VANDÉN DRIES' ORCHESTRA. After getting off to a rather slow start last year, Vandén Dries' Orchestra made strides of progress this year. Being the only jazz band on the campus, the group played all the engagements on the campus this year. These engagements included such dances as those put on by the Monogram Club at Miss Jo Williams'. Also they played for the Freshman-Sophomore Hop in Raleigh and many others. The band has offered music of really high quality and has been quite in demand. Great potentialities are present in this organization, and much is to be expected from it in the future.

MONOGRAM CLUB

Early in 1938, an active group of Wake Forest lettermen met and reorganized the Wake Forest Monogram Club. In the short time since reorganization, the Monogram Club has become one of the strongest groups on the campus.

The purpose of the Club is "to foster and maintain among the athletes of Wake Forest College a spirit of fraternalism, a spirit of mutual and moral support; to instill a love for, and loyalty to, Alma Mater and her ideals; and to promote the general welfare of good feeling and fellowship throughout the student body." Meetings of the Club are held weekly in the chapter room at the Student Center; the room which has been handsomely furnished for the Club's use is the traditional shower room of famous Wake Forest athletes in years gone by.

Under the capable direction of Smith Young, the Club has become one of the school's most worthy organizations.

STATESMAN'S CLUB. The Statesman's Club was founded on the campus in 1931. Under the leadership of President Carl Dull and Myers Cole, the Club has this year taken on renewed interest and has enjoyed a very successful year. The object of the club is the perpetuation of interest in world peace. Its membership is composed of students of junior rating who have done outstanding work in the field of social sciences.

The regular bi-monthly meetings this year have been slightly different from heretofore. Every other meeting is held in the form of a banquet, with some outstanding man as after-dinner speaker. Problems of an international nature are discussed.

FLYING CLUB. The Flying Club was organized last fall by a group of students who have made aviation their hobby. Led by Jack Kester, President, who was instrumental in its organization, the Club has gone forward rapidly, and promises to become one of the permanent organizations on the Wake Forest Campus.

The members of the Club made arrangements for private instructions at the airport in Raleigh, and several of the members have obtained their pilot licenses.

Dr. Isbell is the capable faculty advisor of this newly-organized Club, and has given the members much valuable advice arising out of his previous aeronautical experiences.

NEWS BUREAU. The Wake Forest News Bureau was founded in 1929 by Professor J. L. Memory, Jr. The purpose of the organization is to dispense news of the college, its students and activities, to newspapers over the state and nation.

Daily, the bureau sends out, on the average, four news releases to about twenty papers. It also sends out during the year five hundred news stories on seniors. In the spring a printed sheet of teachers seeking positions for the following year is sent to all high schools throughout the state. This has greatly aided the men in this field.

WAKE FOREST COLLEGE PICTURE SERVICE. The Wake Forest College Picture Service, which was organized this year by John Scott, has filled a need which has long been prevalent on the campus. The service has furnished pictures for all athletic publicity, has done a great deal of work for the News Bureau, and has aided publications to a large extent. Almost all of the photographic work which has appeared in THE HOWLER, Student and Old Gold and Black has been done by this organization. The Picture Service has grown considerably during the year and has become almost indispensable.

BAPTIST STUDENT UNION. The Baptist Student Union is the connecting link between the local church and the various religious organizations of the college. Its membership consists of all who belong to the individual groups of which it is composed. By means of a general Council, the B.S.U. attempts to stimulate and direct religious life on the campus.

Represented on the B.S.U. Council are the following organizations: Sunday School, B.T.U., Ministerial Conference, Mission Study Group, Methodist Club, Student Choir, Evening Vespers, and Morning Watch Prayer Groups.

Conspicuous among the accomplishments of the Baptist Student Union this year were Religious Emphasis Week and the Spring Social, held jointly with Meredith College in the Wake Forest Gym.

BAPTIST TRAINING UNION. The aim of the Baptist Training Union is to provide practical training for young members of the church by leading them to participate in the responsibilities of church membership.

Aside from the regular weekly programs, the Baptist Training Union has promoted several extension programs. The group has exchanged programs with similar groups on neighboring campuses. This year five strong unions composed the B.T.U., in addition to the Methodist Club and the newly introduced Forum Group.

On the whole, the interest in B.T.U. this year has been very gratifying.

MINISTERIAL CONFERENCE. The Ministerial Conference is composed of a group of men who have dedicated themselves to definite Christian service. Almost all of the men who are studying for the ministry at Wake Forest are members of the conference. This organization meets each week, and the programs are varied in interest and purpose. During the year guest speakers are presented to the group from time to time. The students are given an opportunity to speak to the conference in order to present their thoughts concerning religious matters. A sane social program is also carried out. Fellowship with Man and God is ever the aim of the conference.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS OFFICERS. Comprising six classes, all taught by college professors, the College Sunday School Department is the largest organization of the Baptist Student Union. The various classes meet each Sunday morning at 9:45 o'clock in classrooms on different parts of the campus. Students choose the class they wish to attend regardless of age or station, and a considerable portion of the student body participates in the activities of the Sunday School.

In cooperation with the B.S.U. in promoting religious interest on the campus, the Sunday School has brought about a renewed interest on the part of many students in religious work this year.

November Informalities

Potentialities were seen in the class of 1942 as the hottest freshman election of many years was staged. There were many hopefuls who cast their hats in the ring, and many forms of persuasion were employed, pressure at the polls probably being the most popular and most effective. Jimmy Cross won the race for class presidency.

All students must have their pastimes, and at any time one or two tables of bridge can be found in progress in the bookstore. Also the same faces can be sought out at the same tables from day to day. These masters of the art of playing cards could probably give Culbertson a pointer or two. Just around the corner from the cardsters is found the ping pong table where a monotonous biff baff can be heard at any hour of the day. The championship in this field is usually held for only a little while. Still further around the corner, in the barber shop, is a table on which reposes a chinese checkerboard. Some fiends pore over the board hours on end.

Other minor sports, such as tag football and hunting, mark this season of the year. To the fields many huntsmen turned daily until an unfortunate group of Kappa Sigs ran into that fellow called the game warden, unsuspectingly. Smith Young declared it unfair to organized sportsmen.

The howling alley held a great deal of interest for many. A tournament was engaged in here by the fraternities, Delta Sigma Phi capturing the beautiful trophy.

Lindsey and Cross vie for honors with the aid of capable assistants.

Social climber. Gentleman Jim is seen often with Miss Jane.

CLIMBING IS A SPORT. If you don't believe it ask these. Jim Waller this year has found time off from basketball, presidential duties, and writing checks to wend his way up the social ladder. Jane, one of the local lassies, and Jim have become fixtures at all events of any importance on the campus. They both do pretty well by themselves. But when it comes to ascending, probably Randolph Butler reaches the greatest heights. At the first of the year he startled everyone with his daring feats on the drain pipe of Bostwick Dormitory. On many occasions he was known to enter his room this way. Butler is a freshman and hails from Rocky Mount. As would be gathered, he is very agile.

The Seaboard Railway stopped its new Streamline train in Wake Forest on its demonstration tour. Students swarmed about the big iron horse, inquiring about every detail of the entire outfit. Before it pulled away every square inch of it had been covered by inquisitive students and townspeople. And now it passes through Wake Forest every night about midnight to the tune of the entire fraternity dormitory yelling, "Here she comes."

Butler says a straight drain pipe is the shortest distance between two points, the ground and his room.

To get the bell started Tarzan Hughes finds it necessary to climb the rope, and then once it starts it automatically lifts him from the floor. Tarzan says it often gives a thrilling ride. Tarzan has faithfully tended the ringing of the bell. The ringing of that bell means more than the making of a noise. Day in and day out it serves as a signal for the change of classes. The sound of it sometimes seems to come all too soon, but usually it seems belated. Also upon occasion of victory in an athletic contest the bell is traditionally sounded out loud and long. As bell-ringer Tarzan fills a part in the Wake Forest tradition.

Ascend and see what makes the wheels go around.

Young Married Couples Invade Campus

This year was marked by the return of old students to the campus with new wives. Coach Jim and Mrs. Weaver tied the knot in the summer and moved into their newly acquired home across from the high school. Freddie Williams reentered the law school, and he and Mrs. Williams settled in their home on the outskirts of town. Louis met Beirne in summer school, and it wasn't long then. He and Beirne have an apartment out in town. And then there is Professor and Mrs. Carroll, who will always be just a young couple to the students.

School let out the day before Thanksgiving for a week-end vacation. The campus was vacated. Some went home to partake of turkey, while others went to Charlotte for the annual Turkey Day classic, the Wake Forest-Davidson football game, which was a great one. The day belonged to Wake Forest as she took the game 19 to 6. Deacountown was well represented.

The holidays were timely, for nine weeks quizzes had just been finished. Everyone was keyed up for a change of scenery. Upon returning, all were ready to settle down for a period of concentrated effort in a scholastic vein. Were it not for the breaks in the monotonous routine, school life might be intolerable for most students.

Marshall Durham of Burlington, Norvell Ashburn of Atlanta, Ga., Harry Mumford of Ayden, and James Early of Aulander served as President, Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer respectively of the Sophomore Class. These men are a cosmopolitan group, coming from different groups of acquaintances. However, this fact has not deterred them from fulfilling their duties, individually and collectively, in creditable fashion. Moreover, the class has a number of men who will serve their class and college equally well.

It might be noted that a larger number of good athletes come from the Sophomore Class than from all other classes combined. Wake Forest's Deacons were renicknamed the "Flaming Sophomores." Ringgold, Mayberry, and Gallovich were outstanding in the backfield; while Jett, Pendergast, and Trunzo were particularly potent in the line. Vinnie Convery ranked among the leading scorpers of the Southern Conference on the hardwood. Tommy Byrne has demonstrated great ability on Coach John Caddell's nine, serving as one of the starting pitchers. By the time these boys are seniors a new athletic era will exist at Wake Forest.

Among the activities engaged in by the class was the Freshman-Sophomore dance. Bob Goldberg served as chairman of the dance committee. Sophomore Bill Vanden Dries and his orchestra supplied the music for the occasion. This is the second year the dance has been held. It is hoped that this affair may become annual, and that as much progress may be made in coming years as was made this year in making this one of the high spots of the social activities at Wake Forest.

This year the Sophomores have proved themselves thoroughly capable of adapting themselves to Wake Forest. It is during the second year, the Sophomore year, that the high school graduate begins to mature, to look to the future, to understand his place in the scheme of things. The Sophomores have passed that first milestone and are looking to the next marker with whole-hearted courage and great anticipation.

The Sophomores have served notice on the rest of the student body that they have passed their formative year meritoriously and that they have matured into men who will progress and develop according to the truest Wake Forest traditions.

December

December is an important month to the student, for it is in this month that most of the honorary fraternities make their choice of men. Some of the highest honors known to the campus are those conferred by these organizations. In the same vein with the honorary organizations might be placed the student governing bodies, publications, and societies. Also during this month social life is continued in the form of class dances and Christmas parties, given by the fraternities.

Here we see the Theta Kappa Nu party, at which the members exchanged inexpensive gifts.

Seated: Rae Scarborough, Irvin Dickens, Secretary-Treasurer: Heath Bumgardner, Vice President: Eugene Worrell, Myers Cole.

STUDENT COUNCIL

JAMES I. WALLER
President

At the head of student government stands the Student Council, serving in a two-fold capacity, that of administrator and judge. This body carries more responsibility on its shoulders than any other group on the campus. It is confronted with the problem of justly trying student violators of college rules, and it must at all times forward campus improvement projects. The council meets weekly in dispensing with necessary business and often convenes in call meetings when the occasion demands.

The council has this year carried on a very active program under the leadership of President Jim Waller. A comprehensive orientation program was introduced on the campus for the sake of the Freshmen. In order that they might become well acquainted with the college and its activities before the regular session started, the new-comers were ordered to report to the campus two days early, during which time the council through group meetings and discussions explained every phase of life at Wake Forest. Out of the council was appointed a Freshman Advisory Committee, which served to direct Freshman activities during the first part of the year. Further, the council made an active drive to improve honor conditions on the campus and to improve the working of the honor system among the students.

The Student Council has this year proved itself worthy of the honor reposed in it.

STUDENT LEGISLATURE

The Student Legislature is the law-making body of the Student Government. It is composed of the presidents of each of the academic and graduate classes and one elected member from each class. The President of the Senior class serves as head of the Student Legislature.

The legislative body sits in three sessions annually with the Student Council, at which time legislation is proposed and views of members are exchanged.

Occasionally proposals for constitutional amendments are called to the attention of the legislators. At the succeeding meeting the proposal is rejected or passed by a two-thirds majority of the legislative body. Before the proposal is amended to the constitution, it must be ratified by a majority of the student body. However, this year no new amendments have been proposed.

Regardless of long periods of inactivity the Student Legislature has a valuable purpose for through it the student may express his voice in student government. Of late there has been discussion of reorganization of the Student Government. It will be the duty of the Student Legislature to formulate campus opinion and to propose the changes which will be made.

Just as the United States Congress enacts legislation and passes it on to the cabinet for execution, so the Student Legislature passes legislation on to the Student Council to be made effective.

PUBLICATIONS BOARD

In order that the student body might enjoy publications of the best quality the Publications Board was created. Prior to the working of this board, publications officers were elected by popular vote, and this obviously didn't always provide for the best editors and business managers since the men were elected to office because of their popularity and not because they were qualified. Under the present set-up, however, the offices are filled by qualified men because the board has set up a list of qualifications which the prospective editor and business manager of each of the three publications must meet before he is voted upon. Under this new method of selection it is generally conceded that the publications have reached a higher level. The Howler and The Old Gold and Black have both won recognition during the past year.

To become an editor or business manager of either The Howler, The Old Gold and Black, or The Student one must give a great deal of his time in learning every phase in the production of the publication. Also he must live up to the standards set by the board, which are based on capability, scholarship, character, and, of course, experience. Further, when applying the candidate must present a written treatment of a thorough study of every phase of the publication in which he is interested.

The board is composed of the editors and business managers of The Howler, The Old Gold and Black, and The Student, the president of the student body, the faculty advisers of the publications, the Bursar, and two men from each class of the student body in general. The two men from each class are elected by popular vote, and it is in this way that the student body is able to have a hand in the election of the publications officers.

The chief business of the board this year has been to choose officers for the 1940 publications. It also sponsored a publications banquet to which all members of the various staffs were invited.

THE HOWLER

In 1903 the first Howler was published under the direction of the literary societies. It was then a much smaller and more simplified publication, containing few pictures and much written material. Then, as now, it was used as a record, but then it was nothing more than a record. Today, it is a book which fills adequately the purpose of a record, but it goes further. It now contains much material which is useless as a record, but which makes it more a memory book, to which any student may turn at any time and recall the happiest days of his life almost as though he were living them again. In order that the book might recall these memories more fully and candidly the trend has been toward making it more a pictorial publication and less one of heavy reading matter.

Today the Howler is published for the students and by the students. It is a book of over two hundred pages, covering every phase of campus life which includes classes, organizations, activities, and the informal side of campus life. From a technical standpoint, the Howler is made of the best. Generally speaking, it ranks with the best yearbooks in the country. Last year in the N. S. P. A. ratings it has placed in the first class grouping, which is far above the average.

The staff of the 1939 Howler has worked to give the students a book which tells the story of the year 1939 to the fullest. Every phase of school life has been represented in these pages, and it is hoped that each has been given the proper significance in the eyes of every student. It is impossible to give something absolutely new in the way of a yearbook because plans have been exhausted; yet the available material can be presented more perfectly and effectively to give interest. To accomplish this end the book this year has been radically rearranged so that the material falls into a sequence which seems to be more logical. Also the plan has been to let pictures tell the story as much as possible, thus eliminating a great deal of written matter.

It is the wish of the Howler staff that the book may meet the approval of the most critical student and that it may find a place on the student's shelf of favorite books.

When's the Howler coming out?

Staff photographers at work

To John Scott and the Wake Forest College Picture Service is owed a debt of gratitude, for without his cooperation in supplying the HOWLER with the finest of pictures the staff would have been at a loss in producing a book of any interest to all. Also recognition is here given to Hodge Newell and other amateurs who contributed a few of the pictures used.

OLD GOLD AND BLACK

RAY PITTMAN
Editor

N. L. BRITT
Business Manager

The Old Gold and Black, college weekly newspaper, was founded in 1916, with Professor Percy H. Wilson as the instigator. The first Editor-in-Chief was Cary J. Hunter, former prominent journalist in New York City. Hunter and several of the other men largely responsible for the establishment of the Old Gold and Black have since made themselves famous in the field of writing. The first Associate Editor was Laurence Stallings, author of several famous novels. The first faculty adviser was Dr. R. P. McCutcheon, now Professor of English at Tulane University, and co-editor of a widely-used English anthology.

The first issue appeared in the style of a magazine, containing eight two-column pages. Later the paper was made larger, becoming a four-column, eight-page affair in regular newspaper form. By 1921 the publication had grown to a full-sized, six-column paper. It continued this size until 1936, when Editor Charles Trueblood increased the size to seven columns, which the paper retains at the present time.

From about the year 1925 on, the Old Gold and Black became less filled with lengthy editorials, and became more an organ for the direction of news to the minds of the students. The paper serves the purpose of unifying college feeling by trying to publish news concerning all divisions on the campus. In recent years, the paper has leaned toward the daily newspaper in technical makeup, with frequent streamers telling of politics, football games, debates, social affairs, and other topics of general interest to the student body. The editorial policy has been to reflect the life of the Wake Forest student with a fair amount of liberalism yet not too radical.

Last year, under the editorship of David Morgan, the Old Gold and Black was awarded the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association's medal for the best collegiate newspaper in the state.

Advised by Dr. E. E. Folk, of the Wake Forest College Faculty, Editor Ray Pittman and his capable staff have faithfully produced from week to week an alert, wide-awake, well-informed paper, which has proved very popular among the students. Outstanding is the work which has been done by Sports Editor Gordon (Scoop) Phillips in making the Sport Page of the Old Gold and Black one of the best college sport sheets in the South.

On the staff this year, Kelly, Hill, Davis, and Brissie were of outstanding value in presenting the news of Wake Forest in an attractive manner. All of these men will return next year to continue their praiseworthy service to the college and its students.

THE STUDENT

The oldest Wake Forest College publication is the Student which first appeared in 1882 as a monthly literary magazine, with Thomas Dixon, well-known novelist, as its corresponding editor. In the early years of its existence the Student was of a strictly literary nature, containing polished articles on science, religion, literature, and the arts. By 1932, however, it had developed into a literary-humorous publication (with the emphasis placed on the humor); and in the meantime it had passed from the control of the societies into the hands of the student body.

One of the highlights in the career of the Student during its literary days of yore was a series of successive issues in 1909, which were dedicated as memorials to Robert E. Lee and John Charles McNeill. The Lee memorial edition, in particular, was a monumental piece of work, and has been used by many scholars and biographers in studying that great Southerner's life.

As it appears today, the Student is a literary-humorous magazine and is published six times every school year. In general, the subject matter is light and caters to campus taste. Essays, poems, illustrated short stories, and editorials make up the bulk of the magazine, and are sprinkled liberally with jokes and humorous cartoons, to constitute a very colorful whole. Emphasis has been placed on contributions from the student body, and a great deal of talent has been unexpectedly discovered in this way.

Under the capable direction of Harry Williams as Editor and Sherwood Staton as Business Manager, advised by Dr. E. E. Folk, of the Wake Forest College English Department, the Student has enjoyed a successful year, and has been especially popular with the student body.

Notable among this year's issues was the "Homecoming" number, dedicated to the alumni returning for the homecoming celebrations. In this issue there were stories and essays which were concerned with the history of student activities, sports in particular, on the Wake Forest campus. The editorials contained in the Student were well-received both on and off the campus, many of them having been reprinted in other college publications.

Omicron Delta Kappa, college activities and leadership honor society for men, was founded in 1914 at Washington and Lee University by a group of fifteen men who felt that there was room on college campuses for a Greek letter society composed of men who had attained a high standard of efficiency in collegiate activities.

The purposes of the organization are, first, to give recognition to men who have shown qualities of leadership during their college career, second, by bringing together the most representative men in all phases of college life to form an organization which will have a part in the moulding of sentiment of the institution, and, third, to bring members of the faculty and the student body of the institution together on grounds of mutual understanding.

The local circle of Omicron Delta Kappa was installed May 15, 1939. Under the direction of Dr. L. Owens Rea, the local honor society, Golden Bough, petitioned Omicron Delta Kappa for a charter with that organization. Golden Bough was accepted, and thus it became a circle of the national fraternity, all of its members and alumni becoming eligible for initiation. Golden Bough then ceased to function in its old capacity, but it was decided to retain it on the campus as a scholastic honor society with an average of 92.5 required for election to its membership.

Golden Bough was this year composed of eighteen members, Sloane Guy, President, John Lawrence, Edward Knott, Bill Stainback, Jim Waller, A. M. Mumford, Bill Hicks, Joe Wylie, Boyd Owen, James Hayes, Carl Dull, J. E. Tucker, Harry Williams, Eugene Worrell, Smith Young, Charles Manning, Irvin Dickens, and Heath Bumgardner. Out of this group of eighteen, fifteen chose to affiliate themselves with Omicron Delta Kappa. In addition to these fifteen (pictured), certain faculty members, who are members of Golden Bough were also installed as charter members of the circle. They are, Nevill Isbell, George Copple, Alfred Dowtin, J. A. Martin, Robert P. Morehead, Zon Robinson, Henry Stroupe, Max L. Griffin, Thurman D. Kitchen, and Hubert M. Potcat.

ALPHA CHAPTER
CHI ETA TAU

Established at Wake Forest College in 1923

Chi Eta Tau, honorary philosophical fraternity, is in its seventeenth year of existence, having been organized as the Charles E. Taylor Philosophical Society. During this time the fraternity has endeavored to bring into closer association those students who have shown particular aptitude and interest in the study of Philosophy.

Its purpose is to give opportunities for the intelligent discussion of philosophical problems by the students. During the spring a number of supper meetings are held after which matters of particular interest to serious students of philosophy are presented in the Spillman Philosophy Seminar by the outstanding leaders in the philosophical field. Held in an informal manner, the discussions allow time for questions from men in the fraternity, which in turn lead to other questions and problems. Aside from purely philosophical points of view as such, philosophy in relation to religion and commonplace activities is considered. These discussions tend to give the participants a deeper and more thoughtful outlook on life and current problems.

The fraternity is under the direction of Dr. A. C. Reid, Professor of Psychology and Philosophy at Wake Forest, who is recognized as one of the leading men in his field. This year Dr. Reid published a textbook, Elements of Psychology, which has been favorably commented upon throughout the country. Chi Eta Tau is indeed fortunate in having Dr. Reid as its director.

The fraternity fills an individual role at Wake Forest. It is beneficial since it allows men who are interested in this type of study to go further into the field, as well as giving opportunities for association with others who have similar interests.

ALPHA GAMMA CHAPTER
GAMMA SIGMA EPSILON

Established at Davidson College in 1919

Gamma Sigma Epsilon Chemical Fraternity was organized at Davidson College in 1919, and since that time twelve chapters of the fraternity have been installed throughout the South and West.

Alpha Gamma Chapter of the fraternity was installed at Wake Forest College in 1926, and was the direct descendant of the Lavoisier Chemical Society, which had been founded in 1916. Since its establishment at Wake Forest College, the chapter has flourished and grown steadily.

Gamma Sigma Epsilon has as its purpose the bringing together of chemists and the fostering of a better spirit of cooperation and understanding between them. Meetings are held bi-monthly, at which time members of the fraternity discuss outstanding and significant results of recent chemical research work, problems that face the chemist, and other similar topics of interest in the chemical world today.

Membership is based on character and scholarship. The standards for entrance are high and tend to advance greater scholastic endeavors in the science to which the fraternity is dedicated.

Alpha Gamma Chapter tries to advance an interest in the science of chemistry on the Wake Forest campus; and to accomplish this end it brings to the campus well-known chemists, who are authorities in their particular field, to give addresses which are open to the entire student body.

Alpha Gamma is honored to have an officer of the national organization among its members; Dr. Nevill Isbell is the Grand Keeper of the Kult.

SIGMA CHAPTER

KAPPA PHI KAPPA

Established at Dartmouth College in 1922

Kappa Phi Kappa, national honorary educational fraternity, was founded at Dartmouth College, April 22, 1922. The Sigma Chapter was organized on the local campus in 1926. The purpose of this fraternity is to promote the cause of education by encouraging men of sound moral character and recognized ability to engage in the study of its principles and problems. Kappa Phi Kappa places special emphasis on social intercourse, scholarly attainments and professional ideals.

In order to promote fellowship, meetings are held twice a month and problems facing the members, who are destined to become the teachers of tomorrow, are discussed with lasting benefit to all. These discussions are usually led by visiting speakers—men who are competent in the field of education.

This year the fraternity, due to loss of members by graduation and other reasons, had to be reorganized. The new members took a profound interest in the organization of the fraternity and through their active participation in the programs they have succeeded in again placing it on a sound basis. They are always striving to carry out the purposes of the fraternity and are destined to go far in the unlimited field of education. The climax of the year's work was reached in the sending of a delegate to the General Assembly which met in Cleveland, Ohio.

Marshall Breedlove, Worth Copeland, and John E. Collette, as President, Secretary, and Treasurer respectively have made very capable officers for the fraternity, and under their leadership the fraternity has been rapidly regaining its strong position among the fraternities at Wake Forest.

BETA CHAPTER
PI KAPPA DELTA

Established at Ottoeca University in 1913

During the year the Pi Kappa Delta Forensics Fraternity has continued to add to the success that has been characteristic of this organization in the last several years. The Fraternity is open to those members of the Wake Forest Debate Squad who demonstrate special aptitude and interest in debating and other public speaking activities.

The fraternity this year was led by Eugene Worrell, President; James Gilliland, Vice President; and Bedford Black, Secretary. Worrell, who also served as business manager of debating, has won special distinction in every phase of forensics. Black and Gilliland were also active in the fraternity activities, having won recognition as two of the ablest debaters on the debate squad.

The fraternity has fostered a number of worth-while projects during the year. It was host to the North Carolina High School Debate Tournament, in which 25 leading high schools of the state contended for prizes in oratory, extemporaneous speaking, and debating. In April the local chapter entered the regional tournament of Pi Kappa Delta at Farmville State Teachers College at Farmville, Virginia. Also during the spring four members of the fraternity took an extended trip engaging the leading colleges and universities of the North and East, and everywhere meeting with success.

The fraternity meets jointly with the debate squad, and experimental and conventional speech forms are practiced. Wake Forest's success in public speaking can be attributed in part to this thorough training.

ALPHA CHAPTER

DELTA KAPPA ALPHA

Established at Wake Forest College in 1932

Delta Kappa Alpha, honorary ministerial fraternity, was founded at Wake Forest in 1932. Membership is limited to twenty-five men in the Junior or Senior class who have high scholastic records and who exhibit high principles of Christian character.

The purpose of the fraternity is to more closely cement ministerial students and to promote their spiritual life. At the meetings, which are held twice a month, outstanding speakers present problems which face the minister today, and members hold open forum discussions on these problems. Among the speakers this year have been Dr. O. T. Binkley, Dr. H. M. Poteat, and Dr. Benjamin Sledd.

Advisers for the fraternity are the pastor of the local Baptist Church, and the two heads of the Religion Department. Through their advice and loyal cooperation, Delta Kappa Alpha has enjoyed a very successful year and has contributed a great deal to spiritual life on the campus.

The fraternity was honored this year with a petition from a group of ministerial students on the campus of Anderson-Broadus College to be allowed to affiliate with the local chapter and become the Beta Chapter. This possibility of becoming a national instead of a local organization was looked upon favorably, and in the near future definite action will probably be taken in that direction.

EPSILON CHAPTER
SIGMA PI ALPHA

Established at N. C. State College in 1927

Sigma Pi Alpha, honorary modern language fraternity was founded at N. C. State College in 1927. Epsilon Chapter was established at Wake Forest College in 1931, and since that time has grown steadily.

The purpose of the fraternity is to stimulate an interest in, and to acquire a more intimate knowledge of, the language, customs, and culture of foreign countries and thereby to bring about a better understanding between those countries and our own.

Membership in Sigma Pi Alpha is limited to two per cent of the student body, and is based on scholarship, aptitude in foreign languages, and character. Although membership is open to students proficient in German, Spanish, and French, members of the Epsilon Chapter come largely from the French Department.

The faculty advisers for the fraternity are Professor C. A. Siebert, Dr. H. D. Parcelle, and Dr. N. C. Giddings. Professor Seibert, last year, was the national president of Sigma Pi Alpha.

Each year the fraternity brings at least one foreign movie to the campus. This year students of Wake Forest were fortunate in having the opportunity to see "La Kermesse Heroique," a delightful comedy spoken entirely in French with English subtitles to enable anyone to enjoy it.

ALPHA CHAPTER

GAMMA NU IOTA

Established at Wake Forest College in 1937

Gamma Nu Iota, honorary Pre-Medical fraternity, was founded during the fall of 1937 by Frank B. Neal, in cooperation with Dr. C. C. Carpenter, Dean of the School of Medical Sciences. Since the time of its founding it has grown steadily in both membership and prestige.

The purpose of this fraternity is to afford students headed for a medical career an opportunity to have closer fellowship with each other, to discuss problems of common interest, and to become better acquainted with the progress that is being made in the field of medical sciences. In order to bring about these goals, the fraternity meets bi-monthly at which time a speaker, usually an out of town doctor or some member of the Wake Forest Faculty, makes a talk and leads a discussion on some phase of a doctor's career.

As one of its goals this year, the fraternity decided to bring at least one nationally known medical man to the campus, and have him address the members of Gamma Nu Iota in a student convocation in order that the members of the student body might realize the importance of medicine today. In March the fraternity succeeded in bringing to the campus Dr. R. A. Vonderlehr, Assistant Surgeon-General of the United States, who gave a very instructive speech on the vital subject: "Syphilis, a National Menace."

EU SOCIETY

The literary societies at Wake Forest play an essential role in the life of the college. However, it is only through a friendly rivalry that the full value of literary societies may be realized. One-half of the rivalry at Wake Forest is upheld by the Euzelian Literary Society.

The Euzelian Society began its 1938-39 membership campaign with a smoker which was held in the society hall. Dr. Hubert Potent was the speaker for the occasion. Following this a number of new men joined and were put through the strenuous initiation.

Annually the Euzelian Society enters men in the Society Day and Founders' Day competitions. The representatives for the former occasion were Robert Hart and James Cottle who delivered orations, and Seavy Carroll and James Gilliland who debated. On Founders' Day the Euzelians were represented by orators D. P. Brooks and Thomas Lumpkin, and debaters Bedford Black and Robert Goldberg.

From time to time the Euzelian Society has guest speakers. This year the society was fortunate in having the Honorable J. M. Broughton, Wake Forest alumnus and prominent lawyer, as one of its outstanding guests.

The overall purpose of this organization is to afford training in public speaking and to give a better understanding of current affairs. This year the Euzelian Society has fulfilled its purpose admirably.

Further, the Euzelian Literary Society has upheld in every respect its part of the tradition that is Wake Forest. The men who leave this year will join those men who have left to add honor to themselves, glory to the college, and credit to the society which enable them in part to achieve attainments which they otherwise may never have reached.

PHI SOCIETY

The Philomathesian Literary Society this year continued the fine work it has done almost since the founding of the college. Perhaps more interest was demonstrated in literary society activity than at any other time during the present college generation.

The year was begun enthusiastically at the annual smoker held in the society hall at which Judge Johnson J. Hayes, a former Philomathesian and a present member of the Wake Forest College Board of Trustees, spoke. At this time the membership drive was formally launched. A number of new men were enlisted and it is to them that the organization will look for leadership in the future.

In the Society Day competition, the Philomathesians were unusually successful. Philomathesians Worrell and Hayes won the orations, and Brunet and Settle won the debate to give the Phi's a clean sweep and enabled them to retain the cup which is awarded annually to the society winning the competition.

In Founders' Day, Philomathesian contestants had to divide honors with their rivals, the Euzelians. Worrell and Bishop won the orations, but the debaters were defeated by Euzelians Black and Goldberg.

Such competitions as Society Day and Founders' Day are more valuable than may be surmised by casual observation. It is only through such competition that an objective is offered for eloquence of speech and logic of thought.

During the year extemporaneous speaking has been stressed since it is perhaps the most practical of all forms of public speaking. Good attendance and superior literary work characterized the year.

The Philomathesian Society looks forward to years of filling the niche that has been cut for it in the tradition of Wake Forest.

As parties, dances, and other activities take place, life on the campus goes on as usual. One of the interesting side-lights of ordinary campus life is that which is seen in and about the post-office. Many boys seldom get away, and they keep in contact with the outside world through the medium of the mails. Many letters go home, some are of a business nature, but most of them probably find their way to the "one and only." There are those who can find enough foolish phrases to fill a couple pages every day. These have it bad—too bad. Out of these many such epistles, a few writers will score, the majority will take three violent swings at the ball and sit down, and the rest will do an excellent job of warming the bench. Such is the result one must expect when dealing with a curve-ball artist, and they are artists supreme. But nothing ventured, nothing gained; the mails must go on.

On the tenth of the month the Freshmen and Sophomores got together for their annual frolic. It was held in the Raleigh Armory with Vanden Dries heating out time. The affair was a success and everybody had a big time.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT SWEEPS THE CAMPUS

Just prior to leaving for the holidays, students began to get into the spirit of Christmas, and it proved very contagious. Everyone's face bore a smile, and a light and cheery mood prevailed. At night around Hunter Dormitory crowds would gather and sing carols.

It is a custom of some of the fraternities to give their own individual Christmas parties on the night before the beginning of the holidays. The members and pledges gather for a bit of fellowship, giving each other little inexpensive gifts, with which no small amount of fun is had. Everybody breaks down and becomes a kid once more. Most of the parties are stag, but femininity is called in in some cases to lend its charm to the occasion.

For the past two years Dr. Koch has given his reading of Dickens' A Christmas Carol before a capacity audience in the church. Characterizing all persons in the story to perfection, he this year held the audience spellbound as he told of "Old Scrooge" and "Tiny Tim."

January

In the month of January, Exams and Basketball come to the forefront. Students are catching up on a lot of work which they have allowed to lag on, and at the last minute a great deal of cramming may be witnessed. In this section the Junior Class is placed, since, by the time he becomes a Junior, the student has usually found himself in the field of scholarship and is earnestly endeavoring to attain some degree of success along this line.

Basketball, which is ever growing in popularity, is the sport of the month. The team plays an average of about three games a week, offering ample excitement to enthusiastic student backers.

Answering the dream of every loyal booster of Wake Forest College athletics, the 1939 basketball edition of Coach Murray Greason, providing a thrill a second, swept aside all opposition with monotonous regularity. Sweeping through an exceedingly tough schedule of twenty-two games these amazing Demon Deacons established a record never before equaled by wearers of the gold and black by marking up eighteen of them on the win column, and even the most optimistic fans of this institution agree that their record will probably stand the test of time.

With a wealth of material on hand, including Captain Jim Waller, last year's Captain Turk Apple, Boyd Owen, Rex Carter, Smith Young, and Dave Fuller, all of whom are seniors, the Deacons had the experience that is always essential to a winning ball club. To add further smiles to Coach Greason's lips were Bill Sweel, a junior with ball-handling ability that has seldom been seen in southern basketball circles, Vinnie Convery, a long shot artist whose amazing play was to rank him the outstanding sophomore star of the state and eleventh among the conference scores. Rounding out the roster and aiding valuably in the reserve role were H. O. Barnes, a junior of whom much is expected next year, Pete Davis, a six foot two inch center, Charlie Yirinec, Pete Nelson, and Roddy Buie, all of whom were serving their first year in varsity competition. With only height to act as a handicap the Wake Forest Basketball team was a pre-season favorite in practically every section of the South, and with the large number of seniors providing the determination to make their last year Wake Forest's best it is little wonder that the Deacons more than filled the role expected of them.

Led by the amazing feats of their ambidextrous forward, Captain Jim Waller, who was ably supported by "Blondy" Owen, the amazing Deacons amassed a total of 1,108 points during their whirlwind campaign, averaging better than fifty points per game. Attracting capacity crowds at every performance their point a minute habits packed every ounce of thrill and color known in the game of basketball.

As the smoke cleared away the basketballers found themselves Co-champions of the "Big Five" title and perched on top of the Southern Conference by a wide margin for the regular season of 1938-1939. Seeded number one in the annual Southern Conference Tournament at Raleigh, N. C., March 1, the Deacons, tired and worn out by a long and terrific schedule, bowed by the narrow margin of two points in a game that was not decided until the closing minutes to the Clemson Tigers, a team they had beaten twice during the regular season. On March 17 the remarkable record of the Demon Deacons attracted national fame when they were invited to represent the South in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Tournament in the Plastra Gymnasium in Philadelphia. Playing the greatest ball game of the entire season, the Deacons fell before the mighty height of the Ohio State Buckeyes in the closing minutes after leading these Big Ten Champions all the way.

RESUMÉ OF GAMES

Three non-conference games above the Mason-Dixon line opened the Wake Forest Demon Deacons' 1938-1939 season. The fireworks were started at Ashland, Va., where the Deacons crushed Randolph Macon by the score of 57-30. Journeying northward the next day they licked West Chester Teacher's College to the tune of 44-34. Traveling on to Philadelphia the Deacons received their first setback at the hands of last year's eastern champions, St. Joseph's College, by the score 49-54.

Opening their home season in the beautiful Wake Forest gymnasium, the fighting basketballers of Coach Greason jumped back in the win column with an impressive 58-35 victory over the Sovereigns of William and Mary College. At High Point on the following night Wake Forest took a thriller in an extra-period contest with High Point College. With the Deacons trailing the Panthers until the last ten seconds of the game, Young, Deacon guard, dropped in a foul shot to tie up the contest, and the southern conference champions went on to win 48-46.

Returning to the courts after Christmas holidays the Greasonmen made a clean sweep of the Palmetto State by winning from Furman University, 72-41; Clemson College, 39-38; and the University of South Carolina, 39-47, on successive nights. The Blue Devils, on January 7, at Wake Forest, administered a 41-52 defeat on the wearers of the gold and black. In a return game the Wake Forest aggregation again proved to be too strong for the Clemson Tigers, the score being 44-38. The Deacons completely baffled their ancient rivals, State College, by the score of 46-26, and on January 18 these same boys stopped by Chapel Hill long enough to demonstrate to the White Phantoms this game of basketball, winning the game by a score of 57-37. ever, the Tar Heels secured their revenge with a score of 56-54 in the next game.

Bouncing back with the fury of a tornado the Deacons swept aside six opponents that stood in their path during the next two weeks. Caught in the fighting tactics of this smooth working combination were the University of South Carolina, 60-24; State College, 48-42; Furman University, 53-37; Washington and Lee University, 59-44; Virginia Military Institute, 41-20; and Davidson College, 61-43. Once again those unpredictable Blue Devils ended an eleven game losing spree at the Deacons expense, 34-59, and gained for themselves a tie for top berth of the "Big Five" with the Wake County boys. In closing the regular season the Wake Forest team again returned to their winning ways, taking William and Mary College into camp, 46-42, and Davidson College, 38-32.

Johnny Hughes has served the team faithfully this year in the capacity of manager.

Seeded number one in the Southern Conference Tournament in Raleigh, the Champions of the regular season were upset in the opening round by the Clemson Tigers, 28-30, a team they had beaten twice previously.

As a climax to the best basketball season ever experienced by Wake Forest College, the Demons were invited to represent the south in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Tournament held at the Plastra in Philadelphia, Pa. After leading the entire game the Deacons only weakness, height, proved too much handicap, and the Buckeyes from Ohio State University, who later won the tournament, using their height to the best advantage, emerged the winner by the score of 52-64. Even in losing, the Deacons broke the Plastra scoring record, and Captain Jim Waller and Boyd Owen were unanimously selected on the All-Tournament team.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL. The "Baby Deacons" made a very fine showing this year on the basketball court. They won a good percentage of their games, and played a good brand of ball throughout the season. Much depends on what this group of new men develop into by next year, for many men are lost to the varsity this year. Basketball at Wake Forest looks to these men for its salvation in the future.

Junior Officers

This year the officers of the Junior Class are Bill Eutslar, President; Robert Tauscher, Vice President; and Claude McNeill, Secretary. These men have shown interest in most of the worth-while campus activities and projects, and have by example endeavored to influence their associates to be guided by the best traditions of the college.

The Class of 1940 numbers about 150 men, who have survived three years of college life. Next year the juniors of this year will be preeminent in campus affairs. It is to them that other students will look for leadership, and we believe that they will fulfill admirably their places of esteem.

The Junior Class this year has tried to bring about a closer association among its members. Under the leadership of the officers, a dance was planned for February, but the advent of the Pan-Hellenic Mid-winters featuring Blue Barron's orchestra necessitated a postponement. In the spring a Junior-Senior Prom was proposed and it is hoped that this will become an annual affair.

During April, the hottest political campaign in the history of the college was led largely by the members of the Junior Class. Mud-slinging, egg-throwing, stump-speaking, handbill-passing, and cigar-smoking were all engaged in, accompanied by bands of fireworks. When the smoke had cleared away, though one side won and the other side lost, no resentment was held. The occasion offered valuable lessons to future politicians and mob psychologists.

The football team, next year, will be led by Rupert Pate, a junior from Goldsboro. This year Pate was regular left tackle and distinguished himself in every game. He will fulfill the duties that his teammates have entrusted to him.

Honorary fraternities on the campus usually get most of their new members from the Junior Class. The reason for this is that by the third year of college a man has had ample opportunity to show his ability. This year an unusually large number of men were given bids to honor societies. This, perhaps more than any other one factor, shows the calibre of the class of 1940.

In January Students Face Exams

Freshman Suavely worms his way into an intellectual atmosphere as he prepares for exams.

In taking an English exam, Charlie Cooke gazes out the window as if he might pull an answer out of thin air.

Exam-time is the time for cramming, secluding oneself, and growing a beard. A rush is made for the reserve shelf at the library by students who must catch up on their parallel reading, lights burn late into the night all over the campus, and little groups may be seen gathering here and there for bull sessions on the coming quiz. A tense atmosphere pervades the campus until the exams are all over, and then everybody takes off for home to catch a little relaxation.

When everyone else is taking exams there is always that group of about ten who participate in Founders' Day speaking, and thus are relieved of taking their exams. This year Black and Goldberg of the Eu's won in the debate over Brumet and Johnson of the Phi's, and Worrell of the Phi's won the oratory competition.

Gallowich joins the parade to the exam-fest.

Black speaks as Goldberg prepares rebuttal in Founders' Day debate.

At the convocation given to the discussion of the honor system freshman Klucak voices his opinion. He spoke on two different occasions. Note the attentive expressions on faces.

JANUARY IS FILLED WITH VARIED EVENTS

With examinations coming up at the end of the month, the Council called a convocation and demanded a show-down concerning the honor system. Crowds turned out on different occasions to discuss the matter. Some rose to their feet and gave intelligent views and reasons for such views; while others simply spouted off steam. No definite end was gained as a result of the Council drive, but the student body was made honor-conscious, which was certainly no mean achievement.

The Monogram Club held its initiation, during which the initiates, dressed as young ladies, offered the campus many funny sights for a day. At the basketball game that night during the period between the halves, the initiates played the members a game of basketball which threw the crowd into convulsions. At this time they also were permitted to put on little acts. Following the basketball game the Club put on a dance at Miss Jo's Cafeteria, Bill Vanden Dries furnishing the music. The affair was quite a gaga one, and successful.

In the Handball Tournament, which Cy Johnson won, there were many entries. The competition was keen, and the race was a close one to the last. Handball is a favorite sport on the campus and is indulged in consistently by the students and faculty.

It was at this time that the band began its drive to raise funds for securing new uniforms for its members. The drive was directed by Myers Cole and was carried on throughout the spring, resulting in a high degree of success.

Johnson and Dabson enter the finals in the Handball Tournament, Johnson won.

Dr. Hubert Potat gives an organ recital in the first of a series of concerts presented on the campus in the spring.

MEMBERS OF THE FACULTY AT ODD MOMENTS

The Wake Forest faculty is made up of a group of individualists. They are often seen outside the classroom in unique roles. Dr. Hubert Potat is indeed a very versatile man. Aside from being an authority on the Latin Language, he plays the organ and directs the Church Choir, is a renowned orator, and plays a very good game of golf.

The French department of the modern languages courses is made up of Dr. Parcell, Dr. Giddings, and Professor Scibert, who are very good in their line.

This year Professor Memory, who directs the Wake

Dr. Parcell and Dr. Giddings are often seen together, talking over the problems of modern language professors.

Forest News Bureau, worked out a plan for photographing groups of students from the different counties and forwarding such photos to the hometown papers with a write up of the achievements of the boys in the groups. Professor Memory also directs the Wake Forest student-faculty quartet, which can render sweet harmony in any vein.

To Dr. Githens a great deal of credit is due for his contributions to Wake Forest in the way of scoreboards and amplifying systems. He is Assistant Professor of Physics and has done much in building up that department along with Dr. Spears.

To the campus this year came a number of new faculty members; while only one retired from service, that being Dr. Gorrell, who has long been Professor of German in this institution. The student body will miss this amiable character in the classroom and elsewhere. It is men like him that lend so much to the stability of the institution.

The new-comers are: Dr. Olin T. Binkley, Dr. N. C. Giddings, Mr. H. Grady Britt, Mr. George E. Copple, Mr. J. Alfred Martin, Dr. Samuel C. Fielden, Dr. Camillo Artom, Dr. Roland E. Miller, Dr. J. J. Combs, and Dr. J. Allen Easley. These have entered different departments, and each has found his place in the life at the institution.

Dr. Githens, the man of industry, himself, gives his tires a new spring coat.

Professor Memory catches a smoke between pictures as he directs the photographing of the various county groups.

February

Fraternities come to the forefront in the month of February, putting on a consolidated social program at this time. The mid-winter dances are staged by the Pan-Hellenic Council, which secures a prominent band for the occasion. These affairs are enjoyed by the campus at large and are well accepted by it.

In the picture is seen a couple at the Midwinter Pan-Hellenic Dances, which were held in the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium with Blue Barron furnishing the music.

Pan-Hellenic Council

Shortly after the coming of fraternities to the campus of Wake Forest in 1920, there arose a need for a representative unit to deal equitably with the inevitable disputes arising between those bodies. The Pan-Hellenic Council was therefore organized having for its primary purpose, at its inception, the promulgation and enforcement of rushing rules.

Originally the council was composed of one representative from each fraternity, but since last year each social fraternity has had two representatives and each professional fraternity, one. Some ten years after its organization, with the growth of more varied and complete social life at Wake Forest, the council extended its jurisdiction to cover all social functions sponsored by the fraternities, both singly and as a body. In addition to encouraging the social activities of the campus, the council has shown its interest in the promotion of scholarship among the fraternities by the annual presentation of a cup to the organization whose members maintain the highest scholastic average during the current year. This year the cup was again awarded to the Kappa Alpha Fraternity. It is interesting to note that, as a whole, the scholarship average of fraternity men is as high as the average for the whole school and in many cases it is higher. This fact, which seems to contradict popular opinion, has largely been made possible through the efforts of the Council.

Last year the Pan-Hellenic Council inaugurated large-scale dances for Wake Forest students. In spite of much anti-dancing agitation, the council felt assured that most of the student body favored dances, and it made plans for the Spring Frolics. The Rhythmaires, originators of the popular NBC "Sophisticated Swing" program, were engaged to play for the dance, which was one of the outstanding social events in the history of the college. This year, the council continued the idea begun last year, by sponsoring another Spring Frolics. Blue Barron and his orchestra, one of the nation's outstanding "name" bands, played for the Frolics. Open to non-fraternity men as well as fraternity men, the dances have both years been remarkably successful—morally, socially, and financially. The Spring Frolics, indeed, seems destined to occupy a permanent page in the Wake Forest social calendar.

At the present time the council finds its duties varied and exacting in the social, scholastic, and domestic life of the fraternities. Under the capable guidance of Dr. L. Owens Rea, the Faculty Adviser for the council, President Hap Tucker and the other members of the council have discharged their duties commendably, and have completed another highly successful year in the council's history. Not merely is the council helpful to fraternities; it is indispensable—the core of the fraternity system at Wake Forest.

DELTA OMEGA CHAPTER KAPPA SIGMA

Founded at the University of Virginia, December 10, 1869

Kappa Sigma was founded at the University of Virginia, December 10, 1869, by William Grigsby McCormick, George Miles Arnold, Edmund Law Rogers, Jr., Frank Courtney Nicodemus, and John Covert Boyd with the idea of bringing themselves into closer relations of friendship and mutual benefit under the name of a Greek Letter fraternal organization. The founders had many opportunities to affiliate themselves with other fraternities of the time at the University of Virginia, but they chose to build an organization of their own, having confidence in themselves and looking to the future with its vast possibilities. With this spirit in its founders and subsequent members it is only natural that Kappa Sigma should have grown and prospered until it has become one of the "Big Five" fraternities in the United States.

Three years ago the Alpha Chapter of Pi Gamma Sigma, which was organized on October 13, 1924, began negotiations with the national organization of Kappa Sigma under the leadership of Dr. L. O. Rea, their faculty adviser and a former Kappa Sigma at Johns Hopkins. The petition was granted, and on February 12, 1938, Delta Omega Chapter of Kappa Sigma was installed, thus becoming the baby chapter of the national organization and one of the outstanding nationals on the campus of Wake Forest College.

THETA KAPPA NU

Founded in Springfield, Missouri, June 9, 1924

Theta Kappa Nu was founded by the union of eleven well established fraternities at a meeting held at Springfield, Missouri, on June 9, 1924, under the leadership of Professor W. S. Anderson of N. C. State College and Otto R. McAtce of Springfield, Missouri. The story of the consolidation is an interesting one.

In 1924, the idea of organizing a national fraternity from a combination of a number of existing local fraternities occurred to Anderson. During the early part of 1924, through the aid of several prominent fraternity leaders, he contacted McAtce, an alumnus of a powerful and well established local at Drury College. The men found that they had much in common with regard to their ideas of a fraternity consolidation and began contacting a number of local fraternities in different parts of the country for the purpose of calling the Springfield meeting. The response of the local fraternities was whole-hearted in every respect, and eleven of them with similar ideas and purposes formulated plans for the proposed consolidation. The plans for consolidation were culminated in the Springfield meeting of 1924, and Theta Kappa Nu came into being as a powerful and established organization.

Theta Pi was organized against faculty opposition, and existed "sub rosa" until it was recognized by the faculty in 1924. As soon as the fraternity was legalized by the faculty, the members of Theta Pi lost no time in opening negotiations with Theta Kappa Nu for a charter of the national organization, and in December 1924, N. C. Beta Chapter of Theta Kappa Nu was established on the Wake Forest Campus.

TAU CHAPTER
KAPPA ALPHA

Founded at Washington and Lee University, December 21, 1865

The Kappa Alpha Order was founded on December 21, 1865, at Washington College, now Washington and Lee University, in Lexington, Virginia. The four founders were under the inspiration and guidance of General Robert E. Lee, the President of the College, when they began the organization and establishment of the fraternity.

The fraternity is confined entirely to the Southern states, and it has chapters extending below the Mason-Dixon Line from Maryland to California. It was established with the idea of creating an organization to foster and maintain the manners, customs, and ideas of character and achievement, other than "sectional," of the Southern people. Though there has been no declaration of the fraternity to confine its expansion to the Southern states, it is a custom and policy that is declared fixed.

Tau Chapter of Kappa Alpha was installed on the Wake Forest campus in 1881, but existed for only four years, as the administration of the College placed a ban on Greek letter fraternities that was not lifted for several years. At the beginning of this century the ban was lifted, and Tau Chapter came into being again, but its existence was short-lived, as the ban was again placed on fraternities by the administration. In 1922 the ban was again lifted, and since that time Tau Chapter has enjoyed a steady and unrestricted development. Its members have kept the faith with the founders of the fraternity and with Tau Chapter's early members by maintaining the powerful fraternal spirit and a will to attain the goals set forth by its founders.

GAMMA PHI CHAPTER
PI KAPPA ALPHA
Founded at the University of Virginia in 1868

Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, founded at the University of Virginia in 1868, was the outcome of the close friendship of six men who served together in the Confederate Army, notably in the battle of New Market.

The initial chapter was the governing authority for some years, granting charters, installing chapters, and determining policies. The Pi Kappa Alpha Convention of 1889 limited expansion to the southern states, so as to further a concentrated development. Later the field was opened to include the southwestern states, and has since been broadened to permit growth throughout the United States.

Gamma Phi Chapter had its origin in the humble but well-organized "Ain't Puttin' Out Club" which was founded before fraternities were recognized on the Wake Forest Campus. After the recognition by the Board of Trustees the fraternity became known as Alpha Phi Omega and remained a local, though receiving many invitations to affiliate with national organizations, until it deemed it advisable to begin negotiations with Pi Kappa Alpha in 1937.

On April 7 and 8 of this year the fondest desires of Alpha Phi Omega were realized when the Gamma Phi Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha was installed and forty-two men were initiated into Pi Kappa Alpha. Although Pi Kappa Alpha has replaced Alpha Phi Omega on the campus, the old A.P.O. will always live in the hearts of its old members, strengthened by its affiliation with Pi Kappa Alpha.

BETA LAMBDA CHAPTER

DELTA SIGMA PHI

Founded at the College of the City of New York, December 10, 1899

The initial chapter of Delta Sigma Phi was organized on December 10, 1899, at the College of the City of New York by a group of men who had been closely associated prior to the founding of the fraternity. This group had a similarity of tastes, ideals, and purposes, and felt that by incorporating these features as the creed of a fraternal organization, giving it a name and a definite manner of organization, they could benefit both the charter members and subsequent college men who felt the need of affiliation with a well-organized fraternal group of high order. Since the founding of the fraternity it has progressed rapidly until there are at present forty-two active chapters and twenty-three alumni chapters distributed throughout the nation.

In the spring of 1921 Alpha Pi Delta fraternity was organized on the Wake Forest campus by a group of twelve men who drew up the proper constitution and ritual. The fraternity was the first at Wake Forest to own its house, a ten thousand dollar building that was modern in every respect. The fraternity grew steadily for fourteen years, receiving many invitations to affiliate with several well-known and established national organizations, but it chose to remain a local until on May 14, 1938, it accepted a charter from Delta Sigma Phi, and became the Beta Lambda Chapter of that organization.

This year Beta Lambda has been extremely active in campus as well as fraternity affairs. Moreover, it has had the honor of entertaining the Delta Sigma Phi Chapters from Duke University and N. C. State at the annual Founders' Day Banquet.

CHI CHAPTER
ALPHA KAPPA PI

Established at Newark College of Engineering, January 1, 1921

Alpha Kappa Pi fraternity was established at Newark College of Engineering, Newark, New Jersey, on January 1, 1921, by a group of students of that institution whose purpose in the forming of the fraternity was to promote fellowship of the highest order, to encourage scholarship, and to encourage participation in all campus activities, both curricular and extra-curricular.

The worthiness of purpose of Alpha Kappa Pi was recognized and its fame spread rapidly, for in 1925 a local fraternity at Wagner College, Staten Island, N. Y., applied to Alpha Kappa Pi for a charter to that order, and on March 25 of that year the charter was granted, and Alpha Kappa Pi became a national fraternity. Since becoming a national fraternity, Alpha Kappa Pi, continuing to keep its worthy purpose before it, has prospered and developed, as is to be expected of a group with such high ideals, until to date there are twenty-six active and nine alumni chapters.

In May 1932, Lambda Tau, a local, then in its sixth year of existence on the Wake Forest Campus, became the Chi Chapter of Alpha Kappa Pi, and since its nationalization has made rapid strides in every manner, developing into one of the more powerful and influential national fraternities on the campus.

During this year the local chapter has exhibited, possibly more than ever before, the advancement that is characteristic of the fraternity. The student body of Wake Forest has come to Alpha Kappa Pi many times for its class officers, publications men, and other students capable of filling positions of responsibility on the College campus.

RHO COLONY SIGMA PI

Founded at Vincennes University, February 26, 1897

Sigma Pi was founded at Vincennes University, Vincennes, Indiana, on February 26, 1897, by a group of students who had been a closely-knit group of congenial men who felt that there was more to be gained from their college life than merely the courses which they took. They felt that the associations of men of like tastes, goals, and ideals were equally as important as the conventional college activities. With these ideas in the minds of its founders, Sigma Pi came into being. It should not be taken that the founders of Sigma Pi disregarded the real purpose of college, for they stressed high scholastic standing and leadership in campus life. Sigma Pi is the oldest national fraternity, next to the Miami Triad, originating west of the Ohio River, and it has grown steadily since its organization.

In 1938, believing their aims and ideals to be similar to those of Sigma Pi, Delta Sigma Chi, a local founded in 1937 at Wake Forest, petitioned for admission into the brotherhood of the national organization. The petition was enthusiastically granted, and in May of that year Rho Colony was installed through the efforts of Dr. E. E. Folk and Professor R. L. Gay.

The year of 1939 has been a memorable one for Rho Colony. Numbering among its members several men influential in campus activities, the Colony has advanced considerably even though it has been in existence at Wake Forest only a short time. It has been, and will be in the future, the policy of the Colony to spread the ideals of Sigma Pi Fraternity as a brotherhood of, and for, college men.

CHI TAU

Founded at Trinity College in 1913

Chi Tau was founded by a group of men at Trinity College in 1913, for the purpose of fostering good fellowship and understanding among its members and acting the role of a mutual benefit society for its members in scholastic and extra-curricular activities. The growth of the national was slow, but expansion continued in the southeast and middlewest until several chapters were the proud bearers of the name Chi Tau. Delta Chapter was installed at Wake Forest in 1923, after fraternal organizations were legalized on this campus. However, Delta Chapter was not long to exist as a part of a national organization for one year after its installation, the national organization of Chi Tau was disbanded. Despite this blow, Chi Tau Delta, having a strong and well organized group of congenial men, has continued to exist and prosper on the Wake Forest Campus as a local fraternity.

The members of Chi Tau have been an integral part of the campus life, and have gained praise for both themselves and their fraternity in extra-curricular and scholastic activities, as was the purpose of the original founders of Chi Tau.

During its fifteen years of existence, the sterling qualities of the fraternity and its members have been noticed by many well established national fraternities who have offered charters to Chi Tau, but until recently the local has been content to remain as such; however, it is rumored that they are seriously considering the opening of negotiations with one of the finer fraternal orders of the country for a charter.

TAU KAPPA DIVISION

PHI CHI

Founded at the University of Vermont in 1889

The present national Phi Chi fraternity is the result of the union of two medical fraternities of the same name. The eastern division was organized at the University of Vermont in 1889 by a group of medical students of that institution who desired to bring medical men into a closer social and professional relationship in order to benefit its members in the study and practice of the art and science of medicine. The Southern division of the fraternity was founded by a similar group of medical students at the Louisville Medical College in 1894. The founders of the Southern division also had similar ideals and purposes as the founders of the Eastern division.

The two divisions of the fraternity were consolidated in 1905. At the time of consolidation there were five eastern chapters and sixteen southern chapters. From this total of twenty-one chapters in more-or-less restricted sections of the United States, the fraternity has grown and prospered until at present there is a total of sixty-six Phi Chi Chapters distributed throughout the Western Hemisphere.

Tau Kappa division of Phi Chi was installed at Wake Forest in 1935, and was named in honor of an outstanding Phi Chi professor, Dr. Thurman D. Kitchin. Tau Kappa has grown rapidly since its installation at Wake Forest, and its members have been outstanding in practically every line of student endeavor.

CHI THETA CHAPTER
PHI RHO SIGMA

Founded at Northwestern University in 1873

Owing to the rapid advancement of the Wake Forest Medical School and the necessity of bringing medical men into a closer social and professional relationship, a group of students organized the Alpha Delta Chapter of Chi Zeta Chi in 1924.

This organization continued to prosper and grow until the year 1928, when its members realized the advantages of affiliating themselves with the larger and more powerful national organization of Phi Rho Sigma, and negotiations were begun with this affiliation in view. On April 16, 1929, a charter from Phi Rho Sigma was granted, and the Chi Theta Chapter came into being. The members of Chi Zeta Chi displayed excellent judgment when they began their negotiations with Phi Rho Sigma, as that organization has completed nearly fifty years as a society of selected medical men whose members have become famous in their exalted profession. The national organization of Phi Rho Sigma, which was founded at Northwestern University in 1873, has a total of 18 chapters which are located in almost every leading medical school in the United States and Canada. Phi Rho Sigma is justly proud of its program of service which instills into its members the culture, character, professional responsibility, and scholarship that must be displayed by those who swear by the Hippocratic Oath. The organization is eager to improve the art and science of medicine by assisting the undergraduate in his studies and the graduate in the exemplary practice of medicine.

BETA GAMMA CHAPTER
GAMMA ETA GAMMA

Founded at the University of Maine, February 25, 1901

Gamma Eta Gamma was founded on February 25, 1901, at the law school of the University of Maine, by Charles V. Holman, Harold Dudley Greeley, and Charles H. Reid, Jr., law students of that institution who felt the need of a closer association and better understanding between men of the same profession. They set up ideals and goals for which the members of the fraternity were to aim, so as to better both the profession and its followers.

Until 1915 membership of the fraternity was limited to New England and vicinity, but at that date a coast-to-coast policy of expansion was adopted with the installation of Kappa Chapter at the University of Oregon. Beta Gamma Chapter was installed at Wake Forest College on December 17, 1927, marking the beginning of the fraternity's expansion into the Southern states. In 1930 a chapter of the fraternity was installed at Louisiana State University, marking the culmination of the southern expansion policy of Gamma Eta Gamma. There are now thirty-two chapters of the fraternity distributed throughout the nation, and its membership totals over five thousand.

Since its installation in 1927, Beta Gamma has enjoyed a steady and prosperous growth, and among its members have been found some of the most outstanding leaders on the campus in every field of extra-curricular activities known to the Wake Forest man. From the ranks of the national fraternity have come some of the nation's most noted lawyers and judges, and Beta Gamma numbers among its alumni many of the prominent barristers of the State and nation.

FRATERNITY LIFE

In the life on the campuses of American colleges and universities fraternities have come to play a large part. Most fraternities have come into existence in the last sixty years and have since grown in size and prestige.

A fraternity is, essentially, a group of men of similar ideals, interests, and dispositions, who draw themselves together as one in the bonds of brotherly love and who promote the interests of the group at large and care for the welfare of the individual.

Wake Forest boasts of a fraternity system second to none. Its individual groups approach the status of the ideal chapter probably as closely as those on any other campus. This statement is supported by the fact that the scholarship rating of fraternity men on the campus is as high as that of the entire student body and that as local units the chapters are strong and unified.

Fraternity life is here shown in three phases, rushing, pledgship, and membership. To Rushing is given the first month of each school year by fraternities. Smokers are given by each, and prospects are entertained frequently in the chapter rooms so that they might become well acquainted with all chapters before making a choice.

PLEDGE SEASON. The pledge season is a period in which the pledge learns to become a fraternity member. He is taught what is to be known about his fraternity and fraternities in general. He is placed under certain rules and restrictions, during this time, which are intended to start him off on the right foot in his school activity as well as his fraternal activity. These rules require that he devote his time proportionately to his studies, and to extra-curricular activities, and to his fraternity. Also they require that he live up to certain moral standards while a pledge. These rules certainly go for making of the pledge a better man.

The life of the pledge is filled with many colorful experiences, such as the peanut races with a spanking for the loser, the spring house cleaning, and "hell week," which gives plenty of experience in hiking. No fraternity man would take anything for these.

Theta Kappa Nu pledges hope to win by a nose in the peanut race.

Pledges of Kappa Sigma work on the lawn in the spring.

Buck Stephenson, an A. K. Pi, aids a pledge in the making of a history map.

During "hell week" Pledge Manoe, Pika (on left), journeys afar. The sign, which has probably been turned, isn't a very pleasing sight to him. In one of the neighboring graveyards a Delta Sigma Phi pledge, James DeVane (on right), searches for inscriptions.

FRATERNITY MEMBERSHIP

Membership in a fraternity has much to offer the college student. It has many advantages, and it is a colorful life. Every student has his own circle of friends, which he chooses from the campus at large, and the fraternity is just a step further; it is the organization of this circle. As a result mutual benefits are derived by the individuals, and an organization exists which continues to offer such benefits to future students. However, the fraternity goes even farther than this, for through organization and working together with a common purpose in mind the group is drawn closer together, and the individuals become as brothers. Such experience broadens one's personality, and it creates friendships and makes memories which will accompany him throughout life.

Bill Burgwyn and Bobby Horrell, K. A.'s, inspect the newly acquired scholarship cup, which reposes on one of their library cases.

Every student needs to learn to work cooperatively with a group even as he learns to work as an individual, for no man lives absolutely independently. In his fraternity life the member learns to give and take and to be a good neighbor.

The fraternity is an institution within an institution whose purpose it is to afford its students a well-rounded education. The purpose which stands before the fraternity, therefore, is to facilitate the acquiring of an education and to make it even more broad. Fraternities, to this end, stress the maintaining of a high scholastic average. Pledges are taught to study regularly, and they are given aid on occasion in the courses which prove difficult for them by the older men in the chapter. Further, the members work among themselves to keep the standard of scholarship high. The incentive to maintain a high average is increased through the efforts of the Pan-Hellenic Council, which offers a cup to the group with the highest average each semester.

Jimmy Ringgold forks over the monthly dues to "Butch" Clark, the PiKa treasurer.

Rar Scarborough, a Sigma Pi, lends Jack Knight his tar.

Each fraternity has its individual dormitory section or house, which it calls its own and runs as it sees fit. This affords the members experience in the running of a home. Also, it gives the members a wholesome environment for their spare time. The chapter rooms contain nice furniture, a radio and victrola, many magazines, and usually a library of selected books. Parents, friends, and other visitors may be comfortably entertained here, and the chapter room is particularly convenient to visiting alumni of the chapter as a place to stay while on the campus. There they are always welcome.

The social life of fraternities on the Wake Forest campus is adequate for students but not too expensive. The Pan-Hellenic Council stages two sets of dances, one in the fall, the other in midwinter, and each fraternity gives its own dance in the spring. Thus, with moderation in social life, fraternities are comparatively inexpensive on the Wake Forest campus. Dues in the various organizations average about four dollars per month, and the invaluable experience derived therefrom is worth many times as much as the monetary input.

Social Life Reigns In February

At the beginning of the new semester, in February, everything takes on new life. Interest in studies is renewed, and interest in a bit of dilly dallying about Meredith and other female institutions finds its way into the hearts and minds of students.

Meredith and Wake Forest frequently join in giving social functions. At a Valentine Party given by the Meredith girls were seen many Wake Forest lads, who seemed to have reached the height of enjoyment. And there was the Sophomore Party at Meredith to which many a Wake Forester eagerly tripped.

It rained and it rained and it rained, and then it really rained; then came a shower. Wake Forest is ever favored with plenty of rain, and when it starts it seems to never stop.

Lee Settle turns on the personality in the Meredith Parlor, and he really blazes.

MID-WINTER DANCES

In the Raleigh Auditorium on the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth many couples gathered, and as Maestro Blue Barron led off with "Sometimes I'm Happy, Sometimes I'm Blue" the light-hearted crowd began to glide about over the highly polished floor, and the dance was on.

The occasion was a huge success from every angle, and thus one more step was taken in the way of staging big dances for Wake Forest students.

The "Editor" was called on to direct a bit of harmony at intermission in the balcony. He was soon bowed down.

March

The month of March is here given to the professional schools, Law and Medicine. Though these are somewhat segregated from the Academic department of the college, they are two very outstanding features of Wake Forest. A large part of Wake Forest's renown is a result of the accomplishments of the schools of Law and Medicine.

In the accompanying picture "Frosty" O'Brian, one of the two Medical School co-eds, is seen peering into her lab partner's ear as she studies this intricate human mechanism.

Law School Officers

For the first time since its beginning the Wake Forest Law school began the session without the services of its founder, Dr. N. Y. Gulley. Dr. Gulley was retired by the Board of Trustees at the age of eighty-three in the Spring of 1938, closing the most brilliant career of any man in the history of Southern legal education. Dr. Gulley's record is unequalled; he founded the Wake Forest Law School, the first law school officially connected with a major North Carolina college or university, and, what is most remarkable, on twenty-eight separate occasions since the founding of the school in 1894 Wake Forest men have passed one hundred per cent North Carolina State Bar exams. When Dr. Gulley founded the Law School in 1894, he taught twelve students; when he retired in 1938 it is estimated that over two thousand students had been taught by him, many of whom have been recipients of the highest honors and offices in State and National Government.

The student president of the Law School, Charles Manning, with the aid of the Vice President, Bob Campbell, and the Secretary-Treasurer, Max McLeod, has done much for the Law School during the session of 1938-39. There has been a unity and kindred spirit among the law students that has helped to make them work together for the mutual benefit of all. The law students have been very active both in and out of the classroom; in the Moot Court, the Barristers' Club, and the N. Y. Gulley Law Society cases of law and decisions have been discussed and debated upon so that a great deal about the Law has been learned from practical experience.

The Law School closes a brilliant year, and, though Dr. Gulley has not taught classes or personally supervised the professional futures of his students, the vision of him and his work remains before the eyes of the school and influences it to go forward to fulfill the destiny and purpose that Dr. Gulley envisioned for it.

Medical School Officers

During the school year 1938-39 the Wake Forest Medical School has shown more progress than it has during any other similar period since its founding in 1902. The budget has been increased, and several large donations, including two fellowships, have been contributed. The faculty has been enlarged, and, outstanding in the additions, is Dr. Camillo Artoni. Dr. Artoni is recognized throughout the world as one of the outstanding authorities on the subject of biochemistry. All members of the faculty have published results of research or special study in one of the several medical journals, and the art and science of medicine is indebted in no small way to the Wake Forest Medical School.

The student officers of the Medical School, Joe Wyche, who has served meritoriously as President; Bill Stainback, Vice President; and R. T. Wilder, Secretary-Treasurer; have done much to benefit the School by welding the student body together into a compact, well-organized group which endeavors to seek out the truths and solve the mysteries of medicine to the betterment of the human race.

The Dean of the Medical School, Dr. C. C. Carpenter, has done much to publicize the school and give it the reputation it so justly deserves during 1938-39 by bringing to Wake Forest the State Medical Society for the State-wide Clinic and Symposium on Tumors and by addressing many State and County Medical Societies on various branches of the study of medicine.

Through the work of its dean, faculty and officers, the Wake Forest Medical School will continue, as it has during the year 1938-39, to improve and develop the art and science of medicine and those practicing that noblest of professions.

In Professor Timberlake's Real Property class John Lawrence gives a case which contains the "rule in Shelley's Case," one of the most famous points of law. The case system of study is employed in the Law School.

THE LAW SCHOOL IN EVERYDAY LIFE

The Wake Forest Law School, which ranks high among law schools of the south and which is accredited by the American Bar Association, is one of the oldest schools in the state and is no small part of Wake Forest, itself.

A very practical system of study is used in the school, services of superior educators and small enough to allow personal contact of student with teacher.

Bob Campbell and Ed Knott prepare their cases for the coming day in the law library. The library is comparatively large; it contains 12,000 volumes.

In order to provide the student with some practical training the Law School has its extra-curricular activities. There is the moot court, which convenes weekly, and which affords experience in courtroom procedure, and there are the two societies, the Barristers' Club and the N. Y. Gully Law Society, which stage debates and stress improvement of the art of speaking. Also there is a single law fraternity for those who wish some fellowship and social life mixed with their curricular endeavors.

Wake Forest is proud of the accomplishments of its Law School and of its many law graduates who have so nobly flown its colors.

Curlin sweats over an exam on Contracts, which is most difficult. Exams in the Law School are four hours in length and are very comprehensive.

INSIDE THE MED SCHOOL

The Wake Forest Medical School has a total enrollment of about fifty students under a faculty of seventeen. The small school has its advantages in offering a complete and thorough course in the two pre-clinical years, after which all of the Wake Forest students are transferred with no trouble to the larger Northern medical schools for the clinical work of the medical course.

Stairway above entrance to Medical Building.

All students and the entire faculty gather for the Clinical Pre-clinical Conference, where a case with its complete history is discussed at length by all professors.

All of the students of the medical school are expected to attend at regular intervals the Clinical Pre-clinical Conferences of the school. In these conferences cases are discussed from the time of the onset of a particular disease until death. Each member of the faculty discusses the disease from the standpoint of his own particular subject, and the students are thus given a complete and detailed description of the symptoms, treatments, and results of many diseases.

In the first year of the medical course, the students investigate and experiment with all phases of physical activity in a more-or-less general manner. Most of the experiments are concerned with the activity of organs under normal conditions, such as the determination of visual field, activity of enzymes, and the other functions of various organs. In the laboratory the first year students investigate the effects of various types of stimuli on the activity of the more vital organs of the body through the use of laboratory animals.

The medical student's introduction to the course is, naturally, a study of the anatomy of the human body which he is to later treat for disease. The Wake Forest school offers an excellent course in anatomy under the direction of Dr. H. M. Vann. The anatomy of the human body is studied directly through the dissection of cadavers, and supplementary lectures and discussions explain the function of the various organs.

The time in the medical school is not devoted entirely to the mere memorizing of facts already known and determination of values already approximated. From the time of the entrance of the student, he is urged to determine certain facts of organic activity for himself through supervised research.

The physician's most important single item of equipment is his microscope, and the Wake Forest medical scope as well as the characteristics of the little organisms which cause disease.

The outstanding appearance of diseased tissue may be studied without the use of a microscope, and the medical school has preserved many organs of those who have died of particular diseases, which are studied by the student so that differentiation of a particular disease's effect on an organ may be seen without necessitating microscopic examination.

Dr. Carpenter, Dean of the Medical School, talks with second-year students about transferring for their remaining two years of medical instruction.

During the second year, the Wake Forest medical student is introduced to clinical medicine, and has the opportunity to examine and observe the treatment of the many patients in the fine hospitals in Raleigh. Wake Forest has little trouble placing her medical students, and, after conferences with the Dean of the Medical School, the students may transfer to any of the larger schools of their choice for the completion of the medical course.

N. Y. GULLEY LAW SOCIETY. In 1937 a group of Wake Forest law students, feeling that as future lawyers and leaders of this commonwealth, and needful of greater preparation in meeting future problems than they were able to receive from classes alone, and seeing a need for greater fellowship and warmer sense of friendship as exponents of law, organized the Gulley Law Society. The name which it bears was adopted as a symbol of their sincere appreciation for the inspiration afforded by Wake Forest's "grand old man of law"—N. Y. Gulley.

In their weekly meetings a definite course of activity was laid out and carried through. By means of the works of the Society a definite need of law students has been met.

THE BARRISTER'S CLUB. The Barrister's Club was organized in 1932 by a group of law students who saw the need of a society which would give the law student some practical experience in the high art of speaking, an essential phase of preparation for the law profession that is not emphasized in the lecture room. In its meetings problems of law, government, and economics are discussed at length. Current developments in the legal world are also presented at these meetings.

It can truly be said that the Barrister's Club is the outstanding voluntary activity of the law students, and has contributed a great deal to the training of the lawyers of tomorrow.

"C. P. A." Powell silently tells of the advent of spring.

March, and Spring Is Here

March 21 is the official opening of spring, but its presence is recognized on the campus when evidence of the fever and pure laziness shows itself. The trees become green, the sun strikes warmly but gently, and the continuous breeze lightly wends its way through the leaves; these leave the student without energy to lift even an eyelash. He sleeps on class, suns in spare moments, and the rest of the time he finds an outlet for his romantic nature, that being in writing poetry or composing love letters. Such is the effect of spring.

Many and varied events were witnessed in this month. Much excitement took place about the train station on two occasions. Dr. Arton arrived about the first of the month, being greeted by a number of Med Students including Frosty, who wanted the first look at the world renowned Bio-Chemist. It's never too soon to get acquainted with your professors say the Medicos. About a week later the Deacon Basketball team took off for Philly amid shouts and cheers of most of the student body, which turned out to see them off. Against a strong Ohio State Quint the "Deacs" played their best game of the year, but toward the last of the game Waller fouled out, taking our chances of winning with him. Nevertheless the fine showing was hailed by the entire student body.

Under the sponsorship of Coach Jim Weaver a stunt night was planned, and a move was started to arrange for the influx of women to the campus on the occasion. To this end a dating bureau was set up, the personnel being composed of Editor Pittman, Ross Hill, and other Don Juans. However, through administration difficulties the whole deal fell through, and there were about three hundred disappointed Meredith girls.

Columnist Hill and Editor Pittman, of the dating bureau, can come to no terms with Meredith on the stunt night proposition.

"Scoop" Phillips, king for a day, stands by as Smith Young, president of the Monogram Club, seems to be just before swallowing the mike.

MONOGRAM CLUB DAY

On March 24 the Monogram Club put on one of the biggest occasions ever to be seen on the campus. The day was filled with one event after another. In the afternoon, after the band had played the national anthem, to the tune of twenty-one aerial salutes Governor Clyde R. Hoey wound up and threw the first ball of the day as Wake Forest met Springfield for the opening baseball game of the season. The game was easily Wake Forest's.

Governor Hoey throws the first ball of the season.

In the evening prior to the basketball game a high school coaching class was held, at which time Wake Forest's coaching staff spoke before a number of high school coaches from over the state. Then came the game between graduating members of this year's basketball team and the Barrett All-American. The game was filled with thrills, but the old guard was turned back by this invading team.

As Monogrammers and other students danced to the rhythms of Bill Vauden's Dixie at Miss Jo's.

In the game with the Barrett All-Americans, Waller appears to be doing a spring dance.

April

"In the spring a young man's fancy turns . . ." well, to many things, including the fairer sex. April is the month for the appreciation of things beautiful, and it is to things beautiful, the Sponsors, that this month is here given.

In this section the spring sports, track, golf, and tennis, are also placed. These see most of their action at this time.

In the accompanying picture is seen Sherwood and "Boots," who are often found wandering about the campus with eyes only for each other.

April Events

Amid April showers life in Wake Forest continued as always, with an outburst of variation here and there. Meredith and Wake Forest got together in presenting a beautiful cantata in the church. This presentation seemed to indicate that musical talent had reached a higher stage in development than in years past.

After the disturbance raised by students over the matter of improving the working of the honor system there was formed an organization on the campus which called itself "The Sword." Little was known of the body except that it had as its purpose to see that cheating was dispensed with among students. Much criticism was directed at this group for its taking upon itself the right to do away with cheating. Thus there arose agitation against it in the form of posters anonymously painted and carrying the mark of some fictitious organization, such as the "Spider's Web." No tangible results could be seen from the efforts of either group.

On the seventh and eighth of April the local fraternity Alpha Phi Omega became a chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha, a national of high rank. This brought the number of national fraternities on the campus to ten, leaving only one local.

Two thousand cigars were given away, and many heated arguments which usually ended in zingers took place.

At the non-fraternity political rally, Worrell speaks before a crowd gathered around a bonfire.

ELECTION DAY. The campus this year witnessed one of the hottest elections ever to be staged by the student body. There were two opposing parties, each being absolutely determined to be the winner. For the presidential position, over which the fight took place largely, there was Pete Davis, backed by the fraternities, and Eugene Worrell, backed by a non-fraternity party. These men, both good friends, went into the fray with their heads up. Pete came out victorious.

Election day itself was preceded by much politicking on each side. Many methods of vote-getting were employed. There were posters placed over the campus, handbills passed out, and backs slapped. One party gathered a band together and at a bonfire had a big rally. There were many there from both camps, and the affair was marked by much clapping, booing, speaking, clapping, and egg-throwing.

It is traditional at Wake Forest for every student to feel himself a politician and to take part in politics. There are always line-ups, and most students make their choice, this choice being made usually not because of any issue at stake but because of affiliations and the like. Politics on the campus are not without principle entirely, as some would contend, but rather they are on a plane with most politics, that is, they afford over a period of time officers who are above the average in leadership qualities.

GOLF

The varsity golf team this year is composed of the following men, who rank in the order listed: Andrew Beck, Robert Harrell, Glasgow Butts, and Forrest Edwards. The golf team has represented the college well this year, and has been an active part of the athletic program at Wake Forest College.

Al Dowtin, Alumni Secretary of the college, has served this year as the golf coach. He is quite qualified for this position, having won this year the Eastern North Carolina Golf Championship, the Myers Park Invitational Tournament in Charlotte, the Charlotte Country Club Invitational Tournament, and the Biltmore Forest Country Club Invitational Tournament. Under his able guidance the team has demonstrated steady improvement this year.

Bob Harrell served the team very efficiently as manager. Through his diligent efforts matches were arranged with the following schools: Hampden-Sydney, Boston College, Catawba, Carolina, and Duke. Although the team won only the match with Boston College, the other matches were close, and the team showed up very well as a whole.

Several honors have come to the golf team this year. They were invited to attend the State Intercollegiate Golf Meet at Sedgfield. The team also attended the Southern Conference Meet at Pinchurst. In the Eastern Carolina Golf Tournament held in Raleigh all of the members on the team entered and made a very good showing; several of the men on the team played their best game of the year in this tournament.

The team is fortunate in having the snappy nine-hole course on the college grounds west of the gymnasium on which to display their talents and improve their game. Several new tee-offs have been added to the course, and other improvements on the greens and fairways have been made. The course is well-cared for and is kept in good shape all the year round.

Prospects look fine for next year. All of the team except Forrest Edwards is returning. In addition to having these experienced varsity men back again, there are several men in the freshman class who have displayed outstanding skill this year, and who will greatly strengthen the squad next year. Ever-growing success seems to be in store for the golf team in future years.

TENNIS

Though handicapped with a lack of courts on which to practice, the tennis team has made a very commendable showing this year. Under the expert guidance of Dr. E. E. Folk, of the Wake Forest College Faculty, the team won over a third of the twenty-odd matches on their strenuous schedule—a great improvement over last year's record.

Alternating in number one and number two positions are Bob Cahoon and Dick Darling. The other members of the team in the order of their rank are as follows: Ralph Earnhardt, Pete Davis, Lewis Alexander, and Archie McMillan. Sprite Barbee serves as alternate.

Bob Cahoon has been manager for the team this year, and as such has been very efficient. The net-men have taken several short trips and one long northern tour. Manager Cahoon arranged matches with the following schools: North Carolina State, Elon, Guilford, Duke, Carolina, Cornell, American University, Colby, Richmond, Kalamazoo, Loyola, Boston College, William and Mary, Eastern Carolina Teachers College, Virginia Military Institute, Richmond, and George Washington.

Toward the last of this year twelve new tennis courts were constructed on the site of the former freshman football field on Faculty Avenue. The M. R. Kane Company (one of the biggest tennis court construction companies in the U. S.) built these excellent courts. They will be much used next fall by the tennis team and members of the student body who are devotees of this favorite collegiate sport.

Another outstanding feature of the tennis squad's record this season, is the large number of men who won their letters in tennis. According to regulations set up by the Athletic Department of the college, members of the squad who win a specified number of games in regular varsity competition are awarded a Wake Forest College monogram. Five out of the six men on the squad won their letters this year—an unusually high percentage, as the number seldom exceeds one or two a year.

Prospects for next year are very bright. Only two of this year's varsity squad will not return, Cahoon and Davis. With so many experienced lettermen returning, and with so much good varsity material rising from the present freshman class the team is slated to enjoy an even more prosperous season next year than ever before.

May

As the school year draws to a close the graduating class comes to the forefront. They have worked hard and long through the period of four years, and it is quite fitting that they should be honored upon the eve of their departure. So it is to the seniors that this section is given.

Baseball is most prominent at this time, and the season is herein summarized.

In the accompanying picture is seen that long line of degree-seekers just before their big moment.

The class of thirty-nine looks back with mixed emotions as it considers bidding farewell to Wake Forest. It is with sorrow that it realizes that four of the most pleasant and profitable years of life are past; the same emotion is present when the realization comes that the natural beauty of the campus and the friendliness that pervades it will now live only in memory; there is, however, a feeling of joy and satisfaction that comes only with the realization that, though the job was long, hard, and at times discouraging, it was well done.

When the class of thirty-nine entered Wake Forest, the campus was rustic in every sense of the word, despite its three modern, new buildings. The lone brick walk on the campus was in front of the new administration building. A walk development campaign was begun that year, however, and was completed during the senior year of the class of thirty-nine with the building of walks connecting every building on the campus. A new dormitory was built during the four years that the class of thirty-nine was here, and there have been many changes and developments from the scholastic point of view. The faculties of various departments have been enlarged and new men have come in to take places left vacant by death and retirement of some of the most famous educators of the South. The class of thirty-nine was fortunate, however, in having had the opportunity to study under and know such great men as Poteat, Quizenberry, Sledd, Gulley, Lynch, Cullom, and Gorrell.

During the senior year of the class of thirty-nine, its president, Smith Young, of Lexington, N. C., has, among other things, ably led it in making its Senior Gift to the College Band for their sorely-needed new uniforms.

The Senior Class bids farewell to Wake Forest College with tears in its eyes because the wonderful days of college life are over, with a smile of satisfaction on its lips because its long, hard job is now completed with honor, and with thankfulness in its heart because it had the opportunity to reap the benefits it has during its four years at Wake Forest.

Seniors on a week-end in the twilight of their college days.

May Bids Seniors Farewell

Collette looks over his sheepskin with pride.

Senior George Holton says adieu to Sophomore Carter before his departure from Wake Forest.

As Wake Forest beat State 8 to 2

Welch, the well-known lover, makes time to the dining of another.

Tridly picks a bouquet for the one and only Vinson, Brown, "Frosty" and quarter Whitlog, frequently seen together on the campus.

SUMMER COMES IN, SCHOOL LETS OUT

As the sun seemed to draw ever closer and as flowers began to bloom, boys about the campus knew that summer was on its way. Sleeves went up, "leinie" haircuts were purchased, and sunglasses were acquired. Once again the "dear old summertime" had arrived.

Crowds turned out for the baseball games, which came frequently along now, for this was baseball weather, and the "Deacons" looked good. Boys could be seen about the campus picking flowers; some were even optimistic enough to wrap the posies in cotton and send them special delivery to some dame across the way. Whether they fitted her vase or the bottom of her waste basket can hardly be answered. At least the thought was sweet. Even "Frosty" was seen wearing a bouquet on occasion. Surely no local suitor could have been so vain.

Oh, Oh, mistake must be a double exposure. My, doesn't that boy get around!

Batsman decides his time between "guns," between passing out gum and beating his guns, the latter probably having the edge.

For the sweaty days when no comfort is available in sticky clothes, nothing is better than a dip in the cool lake across the golf course. Many seek this relief. Then again it is good golf or tennis weather for those who are fiends for these. For most of us it is good weather for a sunbath accompanied by an icy drink or a cone of smooth ice cream. Who could ask for more?

In the last few weeks of school thoughts turn to the seniors, who are at this time enjoying their last few experiences of school life and who are somewhat regretful of having to leave behind those little things which make campus life worth living.

Finally, to all came the greatest surprise of the year. In the still of the night it stealthily and unsuspectedly stole across the campus to a little den in one of the buildings. There it reposed until morning, when the doors were opened wide, and forth it came. THE HOWLER WAS OUT!!

Rosy has his hands full refreshing the "chopped" and un-refreshed.

"Ah, what a life," says Gulberg, "Plato and Sol all at one time."

Lemme' at that water!

On the pier the mighty Ringgold takes on the rest of the Pikas.

BASEBALL

Coach JOHN CADDLELL

The Demon Deacons of Wake Forest began the 1939 baseball season in the usual Deacon style by winning seven of the first eight games and tying the sixth. The first team to fall before the Deacon onslaught was Springfield College, with a score of 12-1. In quick succession followed Colby College, Michigan State, Cornell (2 games), and then came the tie game with Michigan University. The seventh was the Annual Easter Monday affair with N. C. State College, which the Deacons took by a score of 2-0; then William and Mary suffered a 15-3 defeat at the hands of the Deacons.

It was a fateful day when the Deacons journeyed to Greenville, N. C., for their first meeting of the 1939 season with the Blue Devils of Duke University. Errors took their toll on the Demons and the Dukes had little trouble in putting the Deacs away for the day to the tune of 14-5.

Coming back quickly after the drubbing by the Dukes, the Deacons brought forth an 8-2 win over the Tar Heels of the University of North Carolina in an exciting game at the home of the captains of the two teams, Roanoke Rapids, N. C.

The recovery of the Deacons' was short-lived, however, and again they fell victim to a mediocre Davidson outfit to suffer a loss of 5-3.

The next game will go down in history as one of the best and most exciting games ever played between the Blue Devils and the Deacons. Though the Deacons went down in defeat, 6-5, Tommy Byrne did himself proud while suffering his first defeat of the season by giving the mighty Iron Dukes only ten hits, striking out ten, and holding the leading batter of the Big Five, Eric Tipton, hitless.

The next game the Deacons played was a slow affair, but they returned to the win column by defeating Carolina 3-2. The next three games were rained out, as the Deacons journeyed through Virginia. The Virginia trip was not in vain.

Fuller crosses first base in good time to be safe.

Eason cracks one to the infield.

Dickens scoops a hot grounder.

Dupree is safe at home.

however, as the flaming sophomore, Tommy Byrne, broke into a white heat and limited the V. M. I. Cadets to four hits, struck out fourteen, and led the batting for the day by collecting four hits out of five trips to the plate.

After their return from the Northern trip the Deacons met the Wolfpack of State College on Grove Field, and Rae Scarborough returned to his early season form and limited the Wolves to four hits while collecting three for himself in as many times at bat.

The next game was with Randolph Macon and the Deacons suffered a 2-1 defeat in a slow pitching duel.

North Carolina University, Davidson, and Duke games completed a good season for the Demon Deacons.

Sliding into third base, the Deacon runner is safe.

Swirel catches a foul.

Byrne throws one of his fast ones.

FRESHMAN BASEBALL. Under the coaching of Tom Rogers the freshman baseball team came through a good season this year. On the squad there were several men who showed up especially well and who looked like varsity first-string material for next year. Among these there were Reid, who held down first base exceptionally well, Vivian, a southpaw, who looked good in the pitcher's box, Marshall, center fielder, who racked up a good batting average containing several homers, and Palumbo, who played consistent ball behind the bat.

This group of men will be relied upon to fill vacancies created through the graduation of lettermen, and they are expected to keep up the good record left by those before them.

Second row: Cross, Marshall, Reid, Fletcher, Horchak, Palumbo.

Third row: McCall, Jackson, Cline, Pruitt, Polanski, Vivian, Mitchell, Moore, Manager.

A Fine Calfskin Takes on New Richness

$5 To $750

Most Styles

A FAMOUS ENGLISH WRITER ONCE DESCRIBED A PAIR OF RIDING BOOTS THIS WAY: "WITH MARVELOUS SOOTY GLOW, AS IF, THOUGH NEW, THEY HAD BEEN WORN A HUNDRED YEARS . . ."

FANCY LANGUAGE, BUT IT DESCRIBES THIS JARMAN CUSTOM GRADE STYLE, TOO. THE RICH CALFSKIN IS HAND-RUBBED WITH JARMAN BOOTMAKER FINISH, CAREFULLY HAND POLISHED TO GIVE IT A BEAUTIFUL GLOW. YOU SHOULD SEE THIS SHOE STYLE . . . COME IN TODAY AND ASK FOR THE "TALISMAN".

SEE OUR JARMAN STYLE CHARTS, AS ADVERTISED IN ESQUIRE MAGAZINE THEY SHOW YOU "WHICH SHOES TO WEAR WITH WHAT".

BUILDERS DREAMS

VISIONS created by the imagination precede the achievement of any really great accomplishment. The ability to weave the threads of imagination into the finished fabric is equally important.

It has been the privilege of the EDWARDS & BROUGHTON COMPANY to cooperate with The Howler staff in creating their vision into material form.

Such cooperation is one of the "visions" which precede the building of a successful business, and is a part of the working policy of the EDWARDS & BROUGHTON COMPANY.

To those Staffs desiring complete cooperation, we offer unexcelled service.

You, too, may be proud of your annual.
